Ice topples tree limb

One of the many problems the ice storm brought to Sikeston is falling tree limbs. This one brought more trouble than most when it toppled late Thursday night at the intersection of South New Madrid and Daniel streets. Until the tree-sized branch is clared, traffic will find it dangerous and all but impossible to move through on South New Madrid. Another problem related to the falling limb hazard involves power lines that are broken as the limbs fall. Utility crews worked much of Thursday night to repair downed lines.

Ratchford asks budget increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, president of the University of Missouri, asked the House Appropriations Committee Thursday to approve a $222.5 million budget for fiscal year 1974-75. The request includes about $110 million in state funds.

The budget request is an increase of over $15 million over the university's current budget.

Ratchford told the committee the university was hit with inflationary pressures and would require additional funds for the costs of a larger enrollment next year, a 6 per cent wage adjustment, an inflationary adjustment of t per cent and fixed costs.

"Even at that," he said, "we would have to absorb some inflationary impact." He said the 5 per cent inflation factor on non-salary items is insufficient to meet increased costs.

Rep. Les Langsford, R-Springfield, questioned university representatives about what he felt were ambiguous listings under the university's listing of instructional budget items. Langsford said he wanted to find out how many people listed in the instructional category were actually teaching.

Ratchford said the 6 per cent wage hike was the figure recommended by the governor. He called that proposed increase minimal.

Rep. Gladys Marriott, D-Kansas City, said many professors at the University of Missouri said the legislature had failed to appropriate money for salary increases.

She asked Ratchford to distribute a memorandum telling them that the money is appropriated by the legislature and the university decides how it will be distributed.

Ratchford agreed to the request.

Ratchford said 49,000 students were enrolled at the campuses of the University of Missouri and about 11,000 degrees were granted last year.

The committee also approved an emergency substitute bill to fund the House and Senate for the remainder of the special session. Total funds appropriated totaled $285,700.

Also included in the emergency bill was $8,358,506 for the Department of Welfare and $517,000 for the food stamp program.

Committee members also heard testimony on a dispute between the University of Missouri and the Division of Insurance.

The department has been critical of the university action in awarding an insurance contract to an Illinois firm which did not submit the low bid.

Testimony was postponed until Jan. 21 to give committee members an opportunity to review a report on the matter prepared by the university.

State Prisons Director George Camp and members of the Senate Appropriations Committee sat down for more than an hour Thursday night and discussed penal budgets and philosophy.

They agreed state corrections officers are some of the most poorly paid prison staff in the nation.

The officers average $448 monthly pay which is less than the monthly pay of the Jefferson City police and the $714 pay monthly of guards at the federal prison at Springfield, Mo., Camp said.

"The low salary of corrections officers has been absolutely unreal," said Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, "We have to have the people employed at the institutions wanting to come to work."

Young said the Corrections Department's first fiscal 1974-75 budget request of $15 million was due several years ago. Camp said half of the workers at state prisons must hold second

License bill would protect farmer

JEFFERSON CITY-- State Rep. F. E. (Gene) Copeland, (D- New Madrid), has introduced a bill designed to keep farm vehicle owners from being penalized by an Attorney- General's ruling prohibiting quarterly licensing of equipment used in seasonal hauling of agricultural commodities.

Rep. Copeland said quarterly licensing had been permitted for years in Missouri, avoiding a hardship on owners of vehicles used for hauling cotton and other agricultural commodities, as well as in some cases trucks used for hauling pre- mixed concrete.

"What the Attorney-General did," Copeland said, "was to compel the man who used an agricultural vehicle for only three months a year to pay for licensing for an entire year, and be penalized in addition if he did not get the licensing done by Jan. 15."

"Since the entire history of vehicle licensing is to license vehicles used on public highways, then I feel they should not have to be licensed when they are not used on highways."

Lone gunman robs IGA

KENNETT, Mo. (AP)—A lone gunman held up a Kennett food store just before midnight Thursday and escaped with about $3,000 in cash, police said.

Police said the robber, who was armed but not wearing a mask, ordered Curtis Sawyer, a 19-year-old clerk at Gowan's IGA food store, to empty the contents of his cash register into a brown paper bag. The store is open 24 hours a day.

Authorities said another clerk, Sterling Staggs, 30, was hit on the side of the head twice by the bandit. Staggs was treated at a Kennett hospital.

Police said the robber ran into a customer as he fled from the store, and two other customers in the store at the time of the robbery were not aware of the incident.

Hitchhikers say clothes stolen

Two Lansing, Mich., youths told police Thursday that two travel bags of clothing had been stolen from them by people who gave them a ride to Sikeston.

Robert Cannon said he and Randy Tuper were picked up on Interstate 55 south of Sikeston while hitchhiking. He said they were let out of the car at the Interstate 57 overpass. As they got out, he said, the people drove off, taking their clothing.

The car had Ohio license plates, Cannon said, and had two young men with long hair in it.

Tools taken from parked truck

Tools valued at $318 were stolen Thursday night from the back of a truck parked at the Imperial Bowling Lanes on East Malone Ave., according to police.

The truck and tools were owned by David Murphy of Mountain Home, Ark.

Taken were a chain saw, tool box and tools, two jacks and a briefcase.

The theft occurred between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Ice, wind down power lines

Ice and wind combined during the night to bring down scores of telephone and power lines in Sikeston and the surrounding area.

Power outages were also reported in Morley and Bloomfield.

Dick Inman, director of municipal utilities in Sikeston, said all work crews were out until 12:30 a.m. today. One crew remained on duty for the balance of the night.

The worst outage occurred at 7:30 p.m. and lasted nearly an hour when a limb dropped on a line on Tanner Street, knocking out power in an area from Tanner Street to Wakefield Street and from North Kingshighway to Taylor Street.

Inman said limbs were still dropping on lines early this morning and crews were repairing the breaks as quickly as possible.

A spokesman for Missouri Utilities said spot outages were occurring on his company's lines, also. Most of the outages were outside of Sikeston, he said.

Mike Smith, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. office in Sikeston, said between 50 and 75 telephone lines were down this morning, affecting 250 to 300 customers.

Smith said not all of the affected phone customers were without service, but many had noise on the line.

Most of the lines were brought down by the wind, which picked up during the night, he said.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock said street crews were cleaning up without too much trouble.

An ice storm early in 1972 cost the city $15,000 in clean- up bills.

Roads and highways in Scott County were reported mostly clear except for ice patches. Some of the lesser traveled roads still had an ice cover on them.

All schools in north Scott County were closed today, except for Thomas W. Kelly

Harrington trial set Jan. 31

BENTON— The trial of James "Peterboy" Harrington, 24, on a first-degree murder charge, in connection with the 1971 slaying of Kenneth Ellison in Sikeston, has been set for Jan. 31.

The defense counsel made a motion in Circuit Court Thursday before Judge Marshall Craig that the state produce any written statements of Harrington and produce the names and addresses of all witnesses. The court granted the motion and also instructed the state to furnish the defense with names and addresses of all law enforcement officials who have taken an oral statement from Harrington.

Attorney Robert Dempster, who previously had been appointed special prosecutor to assist Pros. Atty. Jim Moore at the request of the Ellison family, was granted permission to enter the case Wednesday in Magistrate Court by Judge Lloyd Briggs despite an oral motion of objection filed by the defense. It was erroneously reported in Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard that Dempster was denied the right to enter the case.

Kilgore is candidate for Sikeston Council

Mikell G. Kilgore announces his candidacy for a seat on the Sikeston City Council. Two seats on the council will be filled by the voters in the April 2 city election.

Kilgore is a registered stock broker with the New Stock Exchange and represents the company of Reinholdt & Gardner in Sikeston.

In addition to offering brokerage service to the community, Kilgore has shown an interest in community betterment by accepting appointment by former City Manager James Huff to serve in the last year as a member of the Citizens Advisory Committee to the Sikeston Planning and Zoning Commission. The goal of the board and committee was to update the city's comprehensive plan for progress and expansion for the next five to 20 years.

Kilgore is a member of the Sikeston Jaycees, teaches the high school class in Sunday School at First Christian Church and is actively involved in Boy Scouts of America leadership, serving as chairman of the Okeechobee District Exploring program.

His campaign has already begun with a door -to -door canvas of the city. The purpose of the canvas is to hear citizens' ideas on needed improvements in city government and to express how he wishes to make Sikeston's government more responsive to the citizenry.

MIND- MUDDLING MEMOS

Armies may move on their stomachs, but bureaucracies move on their memorandums. A few clues as to why the Federal bureaucracy doesn't always move that well are contained in a new book compiled by The Washington Monthly magazine. Its title: "Memo of the Month."

Some sample memos:

* Sent on September 10, 1971 to commanding officers of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet: "Subj.: Refreshments in wardroom.

"1. For your information and action as you see fit, I have personally overheard Admiral Bell say many times that he does not like to see Kool-aid served in the wardrooms of ships. Over to you. Respectfully, J. E. McCauley, Captain, U. S. Navy."

* March 31, 1972 from Jerris Leonard, Administrator of Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, to all employees: "Effective today, the name change of the Office of General Counsel to the Office of Legal Counsel is rescinded and the current Office of Legal Counsel is redesignated Office of General Counsel."

* Undated memo from James D. Hodgson, Under Secretary of the Department of Labor, to "supervisory personnel" regarding the 1969 Savings Bond Campaign:

"1. There will be no pressure put upon employees, but all will be seriously urged to sign up ... 5. Any person who does not sign the (pledge) card after a discussion with his supervisor will be talked to by the next higher level of supervision to insure he or she is fully aware of the importance the Department places on this program."

* July 24, 1973 from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to job applicant Tracer F. Tunley. The form memo read, in part, "A review of your application indicates that you are not qualified because: --". The reason, neatly handwritten next to the box marked "other" was: "You were not selected."

The book's concluding memo, something of a classic one year hence, was written on January 2, 1973 on White House stationery:

"TO: John Dean

"From: Charles Colson

"Now what the hell do I do?"

Intensive research is going on at the University of Florida on a new glass- ceramic material found to be compatible with living tissue. It has been tested successfully in animals as a bone replacement and as a wound covering. In addition, artificial teeth made of the material are being investigated.

One startling findings so far is that "just as human bone is resorbed and replaced by new bone, so is the bioglass - ceramic substance resorbed and gradually replaced by ingrowth of new cells," said Dr. Homer Paschall, research director. "It is apparent that the artificial substance has a physiology of its own. It also indicates that implants made from this material would, in time, be replaced by natural bone."

As promising as the material is, much reasearch remains to be done before human patients may benefit, the investigator said.

NEW YORK (AP) — You may feel like a colt, but your years are showing if—

You're getting along nicely with the new bifocals you fought against wearing for so long.

The world is getting far too regimented, you conclude, whenever you have to fill out a printed form.

You can't offhand recall the birthday of anyone under 35 and, furthermore, you don't see any reason why you should.

Every day it is a struggle for you to decide whether to have two Martinis for lunch — or none at all. But you never have just one.

Your shirtfront keeps creeping out of your pants band, and you spend most of the day trying to tuck it back in.

Your wife takes the family dog for a walk twice a day and, if the weather isn't too bad, you take your wife for a walk once every week or so.

If baseball was good enough for your father, it's good enough for you, and you can't see how or why pro football, basketball and hockey have become so popular — to say nothing of tennis.

If you get up to dance with a lady, you automatically start to slip your arm around her back, no matter what style of music the band is playing.

Office gossip isn't half as interesting as it used to be, because so much of it now is about new members on the staff you don't really know.

You are too smart anymore to advance a new idea during a staff conference, because you have learned from long experience that if you do, the boss will assign you the job of making it work out.

Anyway, who wants anything new in his life when he already has too many old troubles to cope with?

But if these signs all point to you, you may not just be getting older. You may already have become a fossil.

While cleaning out our desk recently, we came across a clipping from another publication entitled "What The Constitution Means To You." The list of guarantees to the American people sometimes gets lost in the shuffle of political power and government crisis which diverts our attention from the strength of our Constitution. Here's what the Constitution means to each citizen:

It establishes for you a stable and responsible government.

It makes you a citizen of the United States if native born.

It gives you citizenship, if foreign born, on complying with liberal naturalization laws.

It allows you a voice in the government through the officials whom you help elect.

It guarantees you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

It defends your rights even against the government itself.

It makes you equal with all men before the law.

It confirms your religious freedom, and liberty of conscience.

It accords you free, lawful speech.

It guarantees you together with all people the right of peaceable assembly.

It guards your property rights.

It prohibits the government from taking your property without due process of law.

It lets you hold any office in the gift of the nation for which you are qualified.

It enables you to become a citizen of any state.

It prevents you from being held to answer to a complaint unless you have been lawfully accused.

It insures your right of trial by jury of your fellow men.

It grants you the right of habeas corpus, that is, the right to know why you are held a prisoner.

It assures you a speedy trial.

It permits your having counsel for defense.

It prevents your being tried again if once acquitted.

It permits you to have a trial in the state and district in which you may be charged with an offense against the laws.

It lends you the power of government to compel witnesses to appear in your behalf.

It relieves you from compulsion to testify against yourself.

It forbids excessive bail.

It forbids excessives fines or cruel punishment.

It protects you from slavery in any form.

It keeps any state from depriving you of your constitutional rights.

It sanctions your bearing arms for the protection of your life and home.

It secures your home from search except by lawful warrant.

It guarantees you that the legal obligation of contracts shall not be impaired.

It permits you to participate in amendment of the Constitution from time to time.

WILL THE REAL ISSUE NOW PLEASE STAND UP?

If President Nixon's recent press conference did not provide definitive answers to the very alarming experience called Watergate, it was at least the President's first real gesture of respect for the intelligence of the American public since the scandal became a national pasttime some six months ago.

In retrospect, it appears that Mr. Nixon's ungentle give-and - take with the press has had the effect of clearing away some of the murk that has settled over the White House during the past months. One wonders why the man has chosen to make life so difficult for himself by keeping silent for so long.

A number of glaring factual contradictions still remain, as well as several new questions raised by the President, himself. For instance, what "well known" and "large scale" program of burglary and surveillance did the Johnson administration pursue? What Supreme Court decision of last year justified the President's 1970 plan for a gestapo - like supra-legal security force?

Still, despite these and other questions, the press conference — in marked, qualitative difference from Mr. Nixon's Watergate monologue the previous week — has substantially ventilated the controversy.

Now, hopefully, the one critical issue underlying the Watergate events will surface. Until it is met head-on, it can only spread doubt across the future of American constitutional government.

The issue is not the narrow question which has become Sen. Howard Baker's favorite cul-de-sac: What did the President know and when did he know it?

Nor is it, as the President would have us think, the principle of confidentiality or the question of separation of powers.

It is the use of the term "national security" by Congress, the courts and the executive to explain and excuse a whole category of actions which would not be tolerated in a non-national - security situation.

Just what does "national security" mean? What precisely constitutes a threat to the safety of the country?

The administration has repeatedly cited Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's disclosure of the Pentagon Papers as a critical threat to the "national security."

But the fact is, there is nothing in that voluminous record of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations that told the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong anything they did not know before. The papers contained absolutely no military or strategic information. All the papers revealed, in fact, was the duplicity of Johnson, Rusk, McNamara et. al. in saying one thing to the American people while doing another in Vietnam.

From the Kennedy through the Nixon administrations, the term "national security" has grown to an American equivalent of "royal prerogative." It does not portend a healthy future for our consititutional government.

If "national security" is to be used as an umbrella for extralegal activities, then it has to be defined — as precisely as any criminal code is defined.

When we know what specific types of activity threaten the country's safety, when we enumerate precise categories of information which truly need to be safeguarded — such as weapons systems specifications, when we define the scope of executive authority in this area, then we will know what rules we are living under.

Until then, "Watergate" will remain a synonym for government by whim.

STRAIGHTJACKETING YOUR DOCTOR

The average person holds his doctor in high regard. Yet, he appears to accept all too easily the belief that a government - controlled, tax-supported medical care system is either inevitable or superior to the voluntary, free choice system of the present. In short, in spite of the esteem in which the doctor as an individual is held, a great many people would evidently go along with adoption of a system of medical and health care that would impose compulsion on the medical profession.

The irony of the situation is beyond comprehension. We all profess to believe in the rights and freedoms of our fellowmen. Much of the turbulence today is attributable to efforts to assure those rights to minorities and various other groups. And yet politicians propose, and a lot of people accept, the doctrine of compulsion so far as doctors are concerned. The only justification for such action is sheer expediency. The medical profession represents a body of highly - trained citizens -- a body prossessed of lifesaving skills and talents that are in great demand. The idea behind the more extreme national health insurance proposals is simply to seize these skills and talents and regiment them in a system where they are supposed to be at the disposal of the public on demand at a price set by government.

The next time you hear a politician promising medical pie- in- the - sky, just remember his promises are based upon sacrificing the rights and freedoms of an important group of American citizens -- the profession of medicine. Few of us would wish to sentence our family doctor to this kind of compulsion. We should think long and hard before going along with such schemes for the profession of which he is a part.

RETURN TO THE SEA

Incredible as it now appears there was a time, a few years ago, when it was an exceedingly uphill job to convince people in the great hinterland of America that the United States is a maritime nation in which leaders went ahead with imaginative innovations in ship design and cargo- handling technology with full knowledge that a day was coming when our country would recognize the value of its ships.

America's return to the sea began to pick up momentum with the passage of the Merchant Marine Act of 1970. At last a new and highly efficient merchant fleet is on the way and none too soon. The Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Maritime Affairs, Mr. Robert J. Blackwell, has pointed out that as late as last year American-flag ships carried but 4 per cent of the 410 million tons of bulk commodities that moved in our foreign trade. He reported that, "More than two thirds of this tonnage constituted bulk imports, reflecting our heavy reliance on foreign raw materials to keep the wheels of industry turning. All signs indicate that these imports will continue to show a substantial growth in the years ahead ... we foresee ... (them) rising to 485 million tons in 1975, 715 million tons in 1980 and more than 1 billion tons by 1985." A new generation of oil tankers and liquefied natural gas carriers are destined to become an energy lifeline for the U. S. in the very near future. Their cargoes will be a major part of increased U. S. imports.

America's reawakening to the importance of ships and the sea is one of the most tangible indications of an ability to resolve energy and other resource problems with realistic action.

TRAVEL TO ENEMY COUNTRIES

The House Committee on Internal Security recently considered a proposal to restrict travel to countries which are at war with the United States. At the hearings, testimony by former U.S. prisoners of war and their wives revealed why this legislation is desirable.

Air Force Captain Larry Carrigan told the committee that after a member of Women Strike for Peace visiting Hanoi described Carrigan as "a wayward individual," his North Vietnamese captors moved him to another camp where they "really pounded on me."

Other POWs testifying before the committee described the torture and solitary confinement which frequently resulted from visits to Hanoi by anti- war activists. These visitors encouraged Hanoi to conclude that our citizens did not support the war and did not care what the communists did.

Lieutenant Commander Thomas Hall said that these visits also "had a demoralizing effect on POWs. What bothered us most was not just what they had to say, but the fact that Americans were walking around free in Hanoi while we were in prison."

Three POW wives also testified to the committee, pointing out the difficulties to which they were subjected by the goups visiting Hanoi. The pro- North Vietnam Committee of Liaison delivered letters from POWs, but included communist and anti-war propaganda with every letter. "I can never forget the hardship the Committee of Liaison caused," Mrs. Edwin Shuman said.

We must hope and pray that our country can live at peace, but if in peace or war, steps must be taken to avoid giving aid and comfort to our enemies.

Secret Aramco Memos Point to More Oil Troubles

WASHINGTON-- The final lifting of the Arab oil embargo, according to secret reports from the Saudi Arabian fields, won't bring the promished gush of oil.

The reports have been shown to us by sources inside Aramco, the multinational, multibillion consortium which developed the Saudi fields. There are four Aramco partners-- Exxon, Mobil, Standard of California and Texaco-- each an oil giant in its own right.

In these reports, which have been withheld from both the Saudi and U. S. governments, Aramco engineers have warned that "severe technical difficulties" have hampered production.

Their best estimate is that production will be "stabilized" at no more than 7.5 million barrels a day. This is less than half the 20 million barrels that the Saudis promised if their political terms were met.

GREED

But the real scandal, if the engineering reports are correct, is that the production foul- up was caused by Aramco's greed.

For three decades, Aramco has been pumping oil from under the sands of the sheikdom and paying the Saudis mere alms.

Not only are the fabulous, one- sided oil concessions of the past now at an end, but the company fears that its whole Saudi operation will be taken over by the government. The secret Aramco memos are full of references to "possible nationalization" and "unstable political conditions."

A year ago, the memos predicted nationalization would come "well before 1980." More recent memos warn that the takeover may be only two or three years away.

Aramco, therefore, began draining every drop of oil that could be sold from its Saudi wells. The daily production was increased from 6.5 million barrels in 1972 to nine million barrels in 1973. The company had set a 9.3- million- barrel production goal by the end of the year.

EXISTING FIELDS

The corporate objective, according to the secret memos, was to increase production from existing fields without spending any more money than necessary on developing new wells.

The rush to get the oil out caused technical problems. As early as last June, engineers warned that production was too fast. Their secret reports tell of "huge pressure drops" and "erratic production."

The hurried production, according to the reports, created "tremendous volumes" of natural gas, which simply had to be burned off. At a steadier production rate, the reports state, the gas could be compressed and reinjected into the formation.

This would cost a little development money, but it would increase the pressurization and permit more oil to be pumped from existing wells.

However, the documents make clear that Aramco is not interested in preserving petroleum for the Saudi government to expropriate but only in removing as much as possible before nationalization takes place.

NO SHORTAGE

There is no shortage of oil under the Saudi sands. The baren, baked desert virtually floats on a sea of petroleum. The engineering reports, indeed, are highly critical of Aramco's management for failing to conduct adequate "development drilling" and "reservoir analysis."

But plainly, the company is unwilling to invest substantial sums in developing Saudi Arabia's vast oil reserves unless the government makes the risk worthwhile.

One memo estimates that it would cost Aramco $1 billion to increase production. The money is needed for drilling new wells and building more pipelines and storage tanks. Even if this vast investment is made, according to the memo, no substantial increase in production could be expected before 1977.

The Aramco documents show that the company, meanwhile, is concentrating on draining the fields it has already developed. Only 14 of the 20 known fields are now being worked, according to the engineering reports, and substantial production is coming from only 12. Geological surveys indicate that many more fields merely await exploration and development.

SUSPICIONS AROUSED

When the Saudis offered to increase production to 20 million barrels daily, they evidently didn't know about the technical difficulties that have developed. Their suspicions, apparently, were aroused. But the secret reports indicate they were kept in the dark about the seriousness of the troubles.

This is vigorously denied by an official spokesman for the oil consortium. He assured us that the company is developing Saudi Arabia's oil reserves as fast as feasible and that the technical problems haven't been serious. He specifically denied that the company's carelessness will limit future production to about 7.5 million barrels daily, without heavy investments.

We quoted some of the memos to him including one which declared the "reservoir pressures" fluctuated so greatly that the engineers estimated the daily production would be held at "no more than 7.5 million barrels."

This memo, said the spokesman, was "all wet, completely erroneous." The welfare of the West may depend, to a large extent, on who's telling the truth- the secret memos or the official spokesman.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Counterattacking the Environmentalists:

Labor Chiefs Sue 'Bird Watchers' Audubon Society For Millions, Charging Destruction of Jobs

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.-- Now the working class is taking on the "bird watchers"-- in the courts-- in a class action suit.

It would all have a Gilbert and Sullivan swing were the union leaders not setting vital precedent with their move for legal relief from the environmentalists whose civil suits have stalled billions of dollars worth of strategic construction projects across the nation.

The site of battle-- in addition to the circuit court-- is a bird- breeding ground on nearby Blunt Island. The question is, what's more vital, bird breeding or a nuclear-breeding power plant construction complex which the Offshore Power Systems combine plans to build there?

It all began "on or about" April 3, 1972: The J. A. Jones Construction Co. contracted with the Northeast Florida Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL- CIO) and its 16 unions to work on a new facility for the assembly line production of nucelar power plants.

Each of these, pumping out 1.15 million kilowatts of electricity, would be a world "first." They would be portable. They would be towed to "parking" sites off the Atlantic and Gulf coasts near big cities. The first is-- or was-- destined for the watery environs of Atlantic City, N. J.

Steve Leslie, leader of the Operating Engineers national Dredgemen's Union and general vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, described what happened:

"A federal dredging permit was issued. . .to build a plant where they will construct the world's first offshore floating nuclear power station.

"Exactly four hours after the permit was issued, the bird watchers in the Audubon Society filed suit in the federal court in Washington, D. C., and had a U. S. district judge suspend the permit until a preliminary hearing can be held and (it can be determined) whether the matter will go to a full trial."

The dredging contractor was ready to move in on the first step of the projected $250 million project. The operator had two large hydraulic dredges employing over 200 men to muck out, backfill and dig the channels for the actual construction of the plant and to develop waters navigable to the ocean. But the bird watchers stopped it all dead in its muck.

Then history was made. The northeast Florida unions jointly, through their council and leaders, sued the Florida Audubon Society for relief.

The unions charged the bird fanciers with "frivolously, willfully and maliciously" commencing a "course of conduct of interference with the contract rights of the plaintiffs (the union members-- VR) in such a manner that the. . .project (the nuclear plant assembly line complex-- VR) and the construction thereof and the completion of the aforesaid project agreement has been halted and prevented."

The Florida construction unions now want damages paid their members by the Audubon Society. Some $125 million worth of damages. This is the figure estimated in wages during the construction of the portable nuclear plants. The Atomic Energy Commission now is considering applications for licensing of eight such towable electricity units.

The implication is clear. The labor movement is charging the environmentalists with full responsibility for loss of wages blocked by ecologists' civil court actions. If this position is maintained all the way up through the Supreme Court, a historic battle will have been won.

The plaintiff unions also seek the full roster of Florida Audubon Society membership and officials. The insinuation here is legal action against the individual members too.

Countering the bird watchers, the union brief states that the "defendants have conceded that a majority of citizens of this (Jacksonville) area are in favor of the project." Further, the labor leaders state, the project is "overwhelmingly supported by local government officials, community leaders and all other persons interested in economic, financial and long-time well- being of the community."

I especially love cats, dogs, too, birds, of course, and even once had a pet crocodile in the Eastern Congo. But it does appear the labor leaders have a good case against the bird watchers-- especially in these parlous times.

Ordinance to grant cable TV franchise

BLOOMFIELD — The City Council Tuesday night passed an ordinance granting a three per cent franchise to Midwest Video Corp. of Little Rock, Ark., to bring cable television service to Bloomfield.

Customer rates will be set at $5 a month, plus one dollar per additional outlet.

DAEOC to hold elections

The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation has announced that elections to select members of the board of directors to represent the poor will be held Feb. 4, at each of the 12 Area Opportunity Centers operated by DAEOC in the six- county Delta Area. The election will be held from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Two board members from each of the lower three counties will be selected. Each of the two centers in Pemiscot, Dunklin and New Madrid counties will elect one board member.

The upper three counties of Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi will have one elected board member per county. In these three counties, the two centers in each county will elect their area representatives on Feb. 4. Another election, Feb. 11, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., will be held to select one person from the two who received the most votes in the election held Feb. 4, which will provide the one elected board member from that county.

Those nominated for the elections must be from the low- income group, or their elected representative, since he or she will be the DAEOC Board Representative of the poor in the six- county area, and must voice the problems of the poor to DAEOC in order to obtain programs to solve those problems through community action.

All people are creative

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Some people are creative ... or perhaps we should say all of them are! It's apparent, however, that some people are more creative than others in the way they respond to people or work or leadership roles.

All of us are creative, but we don't usually make the best use of our creative abilities. In fact, one authority recently estimated that the average individual has fewer than five creative ideas in his lifetime.

Creativity has become a very common term. A major problem, however, in talking about creativity, is that no one really knows what the term encompasses. Social scientists studying creativity hope someday to be able to measure it on standardized tests, much like intelligence or personality tests we're all familiar with.

In the meantime, we might think of creativity as involving varied and original responses. It also includes some ability to visualize, foresee and generate ideas.

Research on creativity suggests that creative people are rather independent, widely interested in cultural and intellectual affairs, frankly open to their own feelings and emotions and understand self- awarness.

Many creative people, contrary to popular opinion, don't exhibit unusually high academic ability. But nearly all of them are spontaneous, flexible, enjoy risks and are open to new experiences. They represent what we all desire: People in the process of becoming.

Elizabeth Allstrom in her book, "You Can Teach Creatively", suggests when creativity is encouraged and nurtured, it grows and increases ... when neglected or ignored, it often disappears, possibly never to return. Creativity generates self- confidence, courage, a feeling of adequacy and the ability to see what others often fail to see.

These are all things we hope youth can achieve as they grow and develop. As a parent or teacher, you have many opportunities to encourage creativity through your behavior, as well as by what you say.

In the article in National 4-H News, some ways to increase one's creativity were suggested. Some of them are to guess reasons for others' attitudes, expressions and actions, take time to question and investigate, develop an awareness of new or unusual uses for common objects.

A fun activity to stimulate divergent and creative thinking is to list ways you can use a coffee cup, or draw objects using several circles, all the same size. In a creativity test, there aren't any right or wrong answers, just unique ideas and creative responses.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Some nutty couple wrote to say you had ruined what might have been a great party by declaring that people who need booze in order to have a good time were either stupid or flaky. They decided to see if you were right, and at their next party they served only soft drinks. It was a real bomb. Everyone left early. Her husband got drunk by himself.

Well, I don't drink--- ever. And, I'm sure I have a better time than most people I've observed in varying stages of inebriation.

One evening, in order to prove my point, I took my tape recorder to a party of several long- time friends. I picked up some of the most damned- fool bits of conversation you can imagine. It surprised even me when I played the stuff back.

I invited the same crowd to my place a couple of weeks later and played the tapes for them. A few of the guests didn't like it and said so. They left in a huff. (The worse they sounded the madder they got.) But those tapes of mine put four couples on the wagon, and it's been over a year, so it was worth it. Any person who thinks he sounds the same after a third drink is mistaken and I don't care how well he holds his liquor.-- Proof Positive

Dear P. P.: First of all, bugging a private conversation without the victim's knowledge is a rotten trick, if not a legal violation. I agree that a drinker is not a very good judge of anything, especially his own behavior, but YOUR behavior-- and your methods of proving the point are reprehensible.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 23- year- old virgin. Shocked? Most people are, but it doesn't bother me. I'm in no hurry to get married. The right man hasn't come along yet and I don't believe in giving free samples.

I've dated dozens of men, some interesting, others bores. Nearly all of them have tried to get me to go to bed. The variety of approaches would make a fascinating book, but I'm no writer. The oldest line (and it's amazing how many men still use it) is this one: "But honey, you don't know what you're missing if you don't try it." I have a good answer: "Yeah, but if I don't try it I won't miss it."

Maybe my letter will help some other girl keep it all together. Another girl's letter helped me two years ago when I nearly lost control of the situation. Any more advice?-- C. C.

Dear C. C.: You don't need any. Thanks for a good answer to the oldest question in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want to sound like I'm stuck on myself but I'm a 19- year-old redhead with green eyes. I've been runner- up in three beauty contests and have been told I am beautiful by several men who have been around.

The guy I am loony over stands me up at least once a week. He always has some great excuse and I find myself taking him back time and time again. We've been going together for over a year and he is still kissing me goodnight on the cheek. How can I tell if he's alive? He reads your column every day. Your answer could make a lot of difference.-- Dalia

Dear Delia: You need answers to more questions than the one you've asked, but try this, dear. Hold a mirror up to his mouth. If it fogs up, he's alive.

What's prudish? What's O. K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting-- What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill 60654, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Sheltered workshop explained to club

A resume of special services performed by the 78 people now participating in Sikeston Community Sheltered Workshop was given Tuesday by B. W. Gunn, workshop coordinator, at the Sikeston Women's Civic Club meeting.

Gunn said that the age differential of handicapped workers at the workshop is 17 to 57 years. Supervising personnel at the workshop are required to take training courses which enables them to better cope with medical and emotional requirements of the workers.

Gunn stated that over 100 tons of glass were sorted and recycled by the workshop during 1973. Future plans are to accept newspapers and some magazines for recycling.

Gunn added that the most pressing need of the project is a much larger building so more people can be brought into the workshop's various jobs, which are bid work contracts with local and area firms.

Workers from Sikeston and surrounding towns are transported to and from work in vans provided by and driven by qualified workshop personnel.

Twenty-four members and two guests attended the luncheon meeting at the Travelodge Restaurant. Hostesses were Mrs. Ewart Taylor, Mrs. Max Chandler and Mrs. Roy Marks.

The Christmas Home tour co-chairwomen, Miss Almaretta Sidwell and Mrs. Leon Garnett, reported a successful project, making possible the club's ability to honor its yearly commitments to various local projects.

The Feb. 5 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Stauffer on Route Two.

Indians begin MIAA wars

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State University's basketball Indians will initiate the 1974 MIAA hoop season this week end as they take on Northeast Missouri State University at Kirksville Saturday (Jan. 12) and the meet Northwest Missouri State University's Bearcats Monday (Jan. 14).

The Indians, now 4-5 for the year, hope to get their basketball apparatus back into top condition and bounce back from a 25- day period of no games.

The long layoff extended from Dec. 8 to Jan. 3 when the MIAA tournament began.

At the tourney in Springfield, Southeast Missouri State lost to the University of Missouri-- Rolla in the opener 76-67 but managed to come back and top Northeast Missouri State 74-64 and nose out Central Missouri State University 84-80 to finish fifth.

Tuesday night the Tribe encountered all sorts of problems against Arkansas State University and dropped a 67-55 decision.

The Indians seemed unable to build any enthusiasm for the game which, along with a 32 percent field showing and very few rebounds, drowned the Tribe in defeat.

Indian basketball coach Bob Cradic pointed out that both Northeast Missouri State and Northwest Missouri State are talented teams which play with spirit and pride. Cradic declared, "I will be very pleased to gain a split on this trip."

In the MIAA tournament the Bearcats wound up third while the Bulldogs took eighth, which Cradic said, "is not indicative of the talent they have."

Northeast Missouri State boasts seven lettermen back from last year including 6-7 Lee Smith who handles the center position with authority.

Northwest Missouri State has nine monogram winners from last year on its roster and Cradic regards them as "the third best team in the MIAA."

Among their better performers is 6-4 Marcus Stallings, who averaged 15.6 points per game last year and guard Melvin Harvey who netted points at an average of better than 17 per outing last season.

In looking toward the two games, Cradic pointed out the difficulty of playing on the road. He also expressed the hope that the Indians will be able to regain the desire to play which they exhibited at the MIAA tournament.

The Indians entered the 1974 portion of their schedule with two men missing.

Dennis Maritz, a 6-6 senior forward from O'Fallon, will be out of action for several weeks with a broken ankle suffered while working out during the Christmas vacation.

Also gone is guard Lennies McFerron who transferred from Three Rivers Junior College in Poplar Bluff.

The Lilbourn native, who was a starting guard during his brief stay on the Indian reservation, left the team for personal reasons.

After nine games Larry Lawrence of Sikeston is the Tribe's leading scorer with an average of 15.2.

St. Louisan Steve Valli ranks second on the team with a per game tally of 14.6. His average was bolstered during the MIAA tournament where he was selected to the all- tournament team.

BOSTON (AP) — Charles Pagnini, a senior from Whitman, Mass., who has received little public recognition in three years as a center for the Northeastern University football team, is the 25th annual winner of the Boston Tobacco Table's Unsung Here Award.

NCAA rules changes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association made major changes at its 68th annual convention and admitted some measures could create future problems.

At Wednesday's final business session, the NCAA delegates voted to eliminate the mid-November date that major football bowls games were supposed to await before issuing invitations. Now the bowls, except those involving conference champions, could make their matchups early in the season.

"This new rule appears on the surface to be permissive but, in fact, it's what's prevailing now," said Bob James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference and chairman of the NCAA Extra Events Committee.

Earlier in the convention, a proposal narrowly passed which will allow athletes to play professionally in one sport and on the college level in any others.

"It's modernization," said NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, "an accommodation to the individual athlete. It does raise many problems, however."

Southern California football star Anthony Davis, one of several athletes who could take advantage of the change, said Wednesday, "It sounds like fun."

But Davis, the football halfback who also excels in baseball, added, "If I played pro baseball, would pro football draft me?"

Other versatile NCAA athletes who could become dual-status athletes include Quinn Buckner of Indiana and Steve Bartkowski of California. The rule change came too late for the likes of Arizona State quarterback Danny White, chosen in baseball's secondary phase draft Wednesday.

Sceptics have begun talk behind the scenes here already, however, about how the rule might be abused. Couldn't wealthy alumni or others pay a college football player big money legitimately in the summer by employing him as anything from a tennis pro to a baseball player?

At the wrapup convention session, the delegates also voted Wednesday against raising current scholarship limitations in football and basketball. They also turned down a proposal that would have prohibited any recruiting contact with high school prospects before their senior vear.

Devils topple Rebels

CHAFFEE — Coach Harold Persful's Richland Rebels lost a first half lead and went down to defeat to the Chaffee Red Devils 69-62 here Tuesday night.

Each team hit 25 field goals but Chaffee took the game at the free throw line hitting 19 point to 12 for the Rebels.

Richland burst out in front 19-15 in the first quarter and took a 16-11 second period advantage and led 35- 26 at the half.

Chaffee came out shooting in the third quarter as the Rebels went cold from the field and hit the hoop for 20 points while the Rebels netted only 12. With Richland leading 47-46 with a quarter left to play the Chaffee Red Devils forged out ahead in the opening minutes of the quarter and put the game in the bag.

Dennis Sheeter was high for the Red Devils with 24 points and Noise hit 17 for the Rebels.

Scouts help prepare for march

The Mother's march for the March of Dimes will be held in Sikeston on Jan. 29. At that time, mothers will go from door to door collecting contributions for the annual drive against birth defects, which last year helped purchase a fetal pacemaker for Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Junior Girl Scout Troop 3, which meets at Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, is helping prepare for the drive by stuffing packets to be used in the fund drive. The girls are doing the work as partial fulfilment of requirements for Sign of the Star merit awards. From left are: Deidre Mackey, Shirley Murphy, Rita Taylor, Mrs. Ken Walters, chairman of the Mother's march; Jennifer Thornton; Stacy Ebersole; Jill Myers; Khrisy Myers; Lauri Hoper; Janet Sherman; and Amy Bass. Leaders of the troop are Mrs. Jim Wilson and Mrs. Tom Bass. (Daily Standard photo by Tim Ludwig)

Subzero cold to hit state

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Subzero cold is expected to sweep over Kansas and Missouri tonight behind the snowstorm that moved eastward out of the area.

Temperatures were expected to rise no higher than five to 10 degrees above zero today then plunge to below zero tonight as clearing skies allow a mass of polar air to take full effect.

The National Weather Service said the sun should brighten most of the area Saturday.

Travel remained hazardous as road crews continued trying to clear pavements of snow and ice.

Road conditions and the severe cold caused the closing today of almost all schools in the metropolitan Kansas City area of both Kansas and Missouri.

In addition, the cold placed such a drain on the Gas Service Co., that it reduced its supply of natural gas to the schools in Paola and Osawatomie in eastern Kansas under their interruptible contracts.

The situation duplicates an emergency that arose in December. Since then, however, Paola has installed alternate heating systems in four of its five schools, but the high school had to be closed Thursday. About 650 students may have to miss classes a week unless emergency fuel is obtained, said Supt. George Diehm.

Osawatomie closed two of its four schools because only two have been equipped with propane heaters since the December shutdown.

At least five Missouri high school basketball tournaments were postponed Thursday night.

Council will buy billing machine

EAST PRAIRIE — The City Council Tuesday night decided to purchase a new electronic billing-bookkeeping machine from Burroughs Corp. of St. Louis at a cost of $19,714.21 in an effort to update accounting methods.

Aldermen also voted to increase sewer rates one dollar a month in an effort to offset the rising costs of processing sewage. The sewer lift station and lines need repair.

A new pay schedule for city employes was approved. Police salaries were raised $20 a month; police chief and sergeant, $25; collector, $50; and clerk, $30. The radio dispatcher got a 15-cent per hour raise, and regular city crewmen got from 45 cents to 55 cents per hour increase.

A public meeting will be set next week to discuss trash pickup in the city.

Arrest of three solves 2 crimes

Four candy bars were taken in the break- in.

Police said the arrest of two of the juveniles also cleared up the Jan. 1 theft of a tape player from Frances MacCune, 342 Magnolia. The player was stolen from her car while it was parked at 112 Cardinal Drive.

Police said they arrested one of the teen- agers on Wednesday and the other two Thursday.

South African pastor to speak Wednesday

The Rev. Christoffel Botha, one of the first elders in the Church of the Nazarene in the South African European District, will speak next Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. in First Church of the Nazarene, Highway 61 North.

As a medical student, he sought for a Bible- preaching church and learned of the Church of the Nazarene through a friend. He became one of the first elders to be ordained in the Republic of South Africa among the Europeans.

He continued as a successful pastor through the early days of the church, building the strongest Afrikaans- speaking Dutch church on the district, and is equally fluent in English and Dutch. He is a member of the district advisory board.

The Rev. Mr. Botha has made the long trip of 12,000 miles to the United States to attend the Mid- Quadrennial Conference on Evangelism at the Nazarene world headquarters in Kansas City.

Church gains behind growth in population

WASHINGTON — America's churches and synagogues, while registering slight over-all membership gains, are failing to keep pace with national population growth, according to statistics made public by the National Council of Churches.

The latest Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, compiled by the council, reported 6.24 per cent of United States citizens are members of churches or synagogues, compared with 63.2 per cent in the previous year.

While the figures reflect a net gain of 343,689 members, the percentage is declining because population is increasing faster than church membership.

The latest annual study, which reflects counts made in 1972 and late 1971, shows that 131,389,642 Americans are formally affiliated to a church or synagogue.

The Roman Catholic Church, the nation's largest, reported 48,390,990 members, an increase of 176,261 or one third of 1 per cent.

Southern Baptists are the largest Protestant body in the country with 11,824,676 members, a gain of 1.7 per cent over the previous year.

Statistics for this body continue to bear out the trend that traditionally conservative demoninations continue to enjoy the highest rate of membership growth, while the more liberal Protestant demoninations suffer the greatest losses.

Despite church ties

Many Quakers for Nixon ouster

NEW YORK (AP) — In the light of their particular religious links to President Richard Nixon, Quakers have been among the most outspoken of church groups in urging impeachment proceedings on his conduct, or his resignation.

Other religious bodies generally have avoided this sort of specific demand. But a growing number of Quaker meetings have issued such calls to him as a brother sharing their tradition.

"They feel a special responsibility in the matter because of his background as a Quaker," says Walter Ludwig, of Yonkers, N.Y., legislative committee chairman of the New York Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

Among the latest of the Quaker groups taking such a stand was the Stanford-Greenwich, Conn., meeting, which late last month appealed to the President as a fellow Quaker to resign from office.

Citing his Quaker background, the meeting said there appeared to be "serious discrepancies" between traditions he would be expected to respect and actions for which he was responsible, citing a list of them, and urging him to resign.

"We feel tender toward you in the moral dilemma in which you have placed yourself, and sympathize with you in your pain," the meeting added.

"However difficult your resignation may be to you personally, it would aid in dispelling the atmosphere of corruption in our national government. We pray that the power of light will give you courage and consolation."

Several other Quaker meetings, including those in Baltimore, Columbia and Adelphi, Md., have backed impeachment proceedings against the President.

Although many other church bodies have debated the issue, they mostly have refrained from demanding impeachment steps. Only sub-units of the United Methodist Church have done so among major denominations.

Most of them have stressed the need for national repentence and moral renewal. Some Quaker meetings also similarly have shunned advocating impeachment procedures.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture: John 9:24-33

LIGHT FOR THE BLIND

Throughout his teaching years, Jesus recognized the physical needs of those who crowded around Him. After He cured them of these problems, He stressed their spiritual needs.

Today's message conveys more than the curing of an individual's blindness. It stresses the need to be open to new insight in order to see life in terms of Christ and His purposes.

John Milton, in calling for more freedom for writers in 1644, wrote that, "The light we have gained, was given us, not to be ever staring on, but by it to discover outward things more remote from our knowledge."

There are, of course, many persons who have perfect physical eyesight yet they are spiritually blind. The factors behind this spiritually blindness worried Christ.

In these years many persons lived under the darkness of the much earlier sin of Adam. There were many others who deliberately rejected the truth.

The central theme today is that "Christ's light brings man's true spiritual condition into the open and reveals the way from lostness to salvation."

And in today's world one of the greatest needs is for us to bring all problems out into the open and expose them to light. Only under this exposure will we be able to solve our problems and then turn to Christ for final salvation.

Jesus anointed a blind begger, healed him, and the man believed in Jesus. Since the man had been blind from birth there were those who believed he had inherited the sins of his parents. An opportunity was made available then for Jesus to explain "The light of the world."

How would we react today under such conditions? How would we feel if a member of our own family experienced such a miracle?

The neighbors of the blind man were skeptical, as were the Pharisees. Even the man's parents insisted they did not understand what had occurred.

The blind man had no doubts. When he was asked, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?" he inquired, who was "the Son of Man"? When Jesus identified Himself, the man believed.

Sometimes we fear to face the truth. The Pharisees didn't want to face the truth here. Many of the Jews refused to admit that Jesus possessed such gifts for mankind.

If a person fails to recognize God's power at work in Christ, he judges himself. Man is continually searching for light on life's problems. Positive response to Christ is a major requirement.

Men, like plants, will die without light. When we fail to accept the light of the world presented today we too will die.

One commentator on today's lesson has asked: Why do we have a wealth of information and a dearth of direction? Such a problem has existed for centuries, both before and after the years Christ spent on earth.

First-hand experience helps us all to learn and to believe. The cured man could readily believe Christ who had removed his blindness. To Jesus, however, greater faith is required of those who must depend on hearing and reading about such miracles.

Physical sight is temporary; spiritual sight is forever. Unfortunately, we tend here, as in so many instances of our lives, to think only of our day-by-day needs.

We need to have the courage of the blind man who witnessed to the disbelievers his faith. When we say "Now I see" and mean the light of Christ we then have nothing to fear.

Clines Island church honors oldest member

BLOOMFIELD— Mrs. Zadie (Ireland) Wilson, 503 W. Missouri St., was recently honored as the oldest member of the Clines Island General Baptist Church.

She united with the church at the age of 14 and has been a faithful member for 54 years.

Her quiet but dedicated life has been an inspiration to the church and to all who know her, according to the Rev. Ronnie Ledbetter, her pastor, who presented her a corsage of pink carnations.

Her husband is Riley Wilson, who presently serves as trustee and choir leader of the church.

Receiving recognition for perfect Sunday School attendance were Brenda Phillips and Reatha Phillips, one- year pins; Monetta Sutton, two- year pin; Marian Ledbetter, seven- year pin- Rhonda Ledbetter, eight- year pin; Phillip Ledbetter, nine- year pin; and Ronnie Ledbetter, 11- year pin.

New Bible version out

NEW YORK (AP) — In a prolific period of Bible production, translators have turned out another new one.

The latest addition is the "New International Version" of the New Testament, issued last fall after seven years' work by a global team of evangelical scholars.

Freshly rendered from the ancient Greek in which it was written, the new version puts the contents into common, contemporary English and a simple style.

"You cannot serve both God and Money," says Matthew 6:27, turning the old-style "Mammon" into the modern word for it — money.

The new version is one of many that have come out in the last few years, making these times the most productive period for new Bible translations in the long history of the book.

Dr. Herbert Grether, of the America Bible Society's translating committee, says desire for the Bible "in common words" has not been so high since the 16th century Protestant Reformation, a demand that includes Roman Catholics.

The output may seem somewhat "overwhelming, with so many new Bibles now available," he writes in the United Presbyterian and the United Church of Christ magazine, "A. D.," in analyzing the trend.

The "New International Version" involved work of 106 scholars of 20 denominations in Britain, Ireland, Canada, New Zealand, Australia and the United States.

The Rev. Youngbe Kindberg, the society's executive secretary, says the project is of the greatest magnitude — in numbers of scholars and countries involved — ever to undertake a Bible translation.

New film to play in 2 area churches

"Isn't It Good to Know," a new film that abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life experiences of real people, will be shown in two area churches Jan. 20. One showing is slated at 7 p.m. in Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane in Sikeston, and the other at 7:30 p.m. in First Baptist Church at Seventh and King Avenue in Portageville.

The latest film from World Wide Pictures, producers of "Time to Run".

"Isn't It Good to Know" was edited and directed by J. Michael Hooser, a 26- year-old film- maker who brings provocative new techniques to his first major film. Using a varying number of images on the same screen, Hooser creates a multi- media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from the Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas" through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

By shifting the viewer's attention from the true stories of the people who lived them to brief appearances by Billy Graham and video- vignettes coupled with original new songs-- "Isn't It Good To Know" and "Gone Away", by Tedd Smith, and "The Soap- box Song", by Judy McKenzie-- Hooser created a film conveying ultimate drama-- the drama of courage.

Purpose comes out of emptiness. Silence becomes communication. And from the disillusionment of drugs, violent protest and witchcraft, there comes a new beginning-- new life.

"Isn't It Good to Know" is currently being shown in numerous locations across the country each month.

Graham would like to become country pastor

MADISON, Ga. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, who has preached to millions of people around the world, says he would gladly change places with a country church pastor.

"I really want to be just a preacher. I don't want to be anything else in all of life except to preach the gospel and win people for Christ," he said.

"In fact, when I pass some of these little churches in Georgia . . . and these little towns and little Baptist churches, I sort of long to go back to that.

THE BIBLE

117. Samson Is Captured

On three separate occasions, Samson had prevented the treacherous Delilah from discovering the secret of his strength. "And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death; that he told her all his heart, and said unto her, there hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man." (Judges 16:16-17)

When Delilah realized that Samson had indeed confessed the secret, she called for a barber who shaved his locks as Samson slept. Then, Delilah told him, as she had on the three other occasions, that the Philistines were upon him. Samson thought he would shake himself free again, for he did not know that the spirit of the Lord had left him.

So the Philistines were able to capture Samson. They took him to Gaza, bound him with bronze chains and forced him to grind grain in the prison.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Blanton Jr.:

Misleading information seems to have gained wide currency in the state that the reorganization bill recently approved by the Missouri Senate carries out the spirit and intent of the "Little Hoover" Commission.

I would like to make it clear that the bill as passed by the Senate, does not carry out the intent or spirit of the Little Hoover Commission. I think you will realize, after reading the Little Hoover report I mailed to you in October, 1973, that only a part of the Commission report is carried out in the Senate bill. Unfortunately the Senate also exceeded the recommendations of the Commission with the excessive use of advice and consent which extends to second and third level appointments. When this excessive advice and consent is coupled with the recommendations of the Commission which the Senate did not accept, mainly that of giving authority to the department director to properly organize and manage his department - the Senate bill will not carry out the intent of the Commission but impair the basic authority for reorganization given to the department directors by the Little Hoover report.

The main thrust of the Commission was to:

"reduce to manageable proportions the unrealistically expended span of supervisory control now imposed upon the state's chief executive. The State Reorganization Commission sought to establish reasonablity lines of responsiblity and control under department heads."

The Commission's report strongly emphasized the need to improve the manageability of the executive branch by strengthening the supervision of department heads, thus providing an intermediate level of supervision responsible to the Governor, making the executive branch more accountable to the citizens of the state.

The Commission sought reorganization "in terms of the general and statewide interest," rather than the convenience and desires of state agencies. The Senate bill in far too many cases places the more narrow interests of individual state agencies first.

Again, by accepting only a small part of the recommendations of the Commission, the bill approved by the Senate departs from that concept in even greater degree than the measure vetoed by Governor Bond last year.

Like the vetoed bill, the Senate bill has too many provisions which impair opportunities for consolidation of staffs of related programs; for joint use of equipment; for elimination of overlapping and duplication among programs; better utilization of building space; and improved fiscal planning. It does so by clothing sub- units in departments with too much autonomy, spelling out too many departmental details and obscuring lines of departmental discipline. The bill seems to be the result of a nearsighted view in which only a tree is visible and the forest is out of sight.

I earnestly hope that, in the legislative processes that lie ahead, a measure can be approved that conforms with what the voters were led to expect -- namely, a measure providing a simplified state structure with departments in which clear lines of authority and responsibility can be established.

I urge you to talk with the Representatives and Senators in your area in an attempt to convince them that the citizens of Missouri do want a good reorganization bill --- and will not accept less.

Sincerely yours,
D. W. Gilmore
Chairman of the Citizens Committee
Citizens Committee for State Reorganization

Dear Editor,

I am writing a letter to praise the City Humane officer. I think it is a very nice person to let people call him at home when he is off duty. I think the City should give him a raise in pay since he is doing such a very nice job we are such lucky people of Sikeston to have a very nice person to do this job he does. Would you please print this in the paper so he can and everybody else can read about him and his good work.

Yours truly,
David Sisk

Editor Blanton,

I do not want the E.R.A. or the so called Equal Rights Amendment passed. We do not need it the Civil Rights has already passed laws against the discrimination against women in jobs or hiring and wages all women need do is see that it is enforced. The E.R.A. would not help in any way. But according to some E. R. A. material I received it would force condition on women and men that would put us at the level of animals. I don't want women drafted to fight with men and quartered with men to use the same toilet and wash room I want women and men rest rooms separate as they have always been. Men should support their family and women should take care of their home and family. Women should consider the creation of life that God gave them a privilege and the shaping of that life into a decent human being a real fulfilment. I believe in God and his commandment and if we shaped our lives by these commandments it would be a better world. The New Testament tell men and women both how to treat each other and if we did this we would have the best society that ever existed.

We need God and moral values we don't need E. R. A. or Women Lib. Civil rights gave women job rights we don't need E. R. A.

Women should call their Representative and Gov. Bond and write their local paper if they don't want E.R.A. if you want the material on ERA contact Mrs. Harry Bock 561 Kingshighway, New Madrid or get it from Jefferson City. I have already distributed all the material I have.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I have just finished a most enjoyable and rewarding project. It took four and one-half years and fulfilled a dream of many years. I moved to Sikeston in July of 1969 to be a supervisor in the Scott County Welfare Office. In August of 1969 I noticed that Southeast Missouri State College (now a university) was offering a night course in Shakespeare for graduate students. Since I had never taken a course in Shakespeare, I saw this as an opportunity to learn. I enrolled in the course and enjoyed it so much that I kept going one night a week for four and one- half years. Last Sunday afternoon I was awarded the Master of Arts degree at Southeast Missouri State University. I received a B.S. in Education from the college in 1952. Going back 17 years later, I was impressed by the changed at the university. I learned much about the thoughts and problems of the younger generation. I am more hopeful about our future after rubbing elbows with these younger students.

I always felt accepted by the students. In many of the classes, I was old enough to be the father of the other students. The faculty and administration were most courteous in their treatment of me.

I'm sure many who read this would like to learn more about a particular field. Why not write the university and see what is offered in your field of interest. I'm going to rest a while and go back again, this time in American history.

Oh yes, to get the degree, I gave up T. V. I've watched less than 25 hours of T.V. in those 4½ years and don't feel I missed a thing. With the gas shortage, what better way to spend a Sunday afternoon reading Shakespeare's Richard II and Richard III and comparing them to Richard Nixon. You might be surprised what Shakespeare could be saying to America in 1973-74.

Sincerely,
Rev. Howard Ray

Dear Editor:

The Economic and Social Council of the United Nations met recently amid pompous impressiveness and came forth with a variety of great pronouncements expressing "grave concern" about nearly everything. The Council for Human Rights proceeded to adopt 15 profound resolutions, including prohibition of capital punishment.

It was a surprise to no one that not one of the 15 "great" resolutions mentioned a word of condemnation of Russia or the "People's Republic" of China for denying all Human Rights and Civil Rights to their people who are held captive and not even permitted to emigrate freely. Mention of the captive Baltic and other nations was conspicuous by its absence, although they are dominated and held captive by Communist dictatorships.

The United Nation's vaunted "Declaration of Human Rights" is sadly enough a hollow untruth!

Sincerely,
C. C. Moseley, President

Dear Sir:

It is my understanding that the Constitution of the United States provides specific powers for the federal government and reserves all other powers to the states or to the people.

Where and when did the Constitution give the federal government any authority to decree the speed at which trucks may be driven (or any other vehicle) on the roads of any state or in the streets of any town or city?

Has Mr. Nixon allowed some parts of the Constitution to be erased, along with some of his tapes?

Sincerely,
Mrs. Harry Bock

Fund-raising is topic of Chaffee Jaycee meeting

CHAFFEE — Various fund-raising projects were discussed at a recent meeting of the Chaffee Jaycees.

The group appointed Bill Hagan to investigate the possibility of bringing an all-star wrestling event to the city, and Dan Bollinger was named to head the "Sixties Dance" committee.

Mark Pfefferkorn reported the club lost $300 on its Christmas tree sales this year, and it was reported a Jaycee - sponsored shooting match set for Jan. 27 has been postponed until Feb. 3.

Members voted to plant an evergreen tree in Circle Park to serve as a permanent community Christmas tree, and it was announced that members will visit the Cape Girardeau Jaycees Monday night.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

God's peace, which is far beyond human understanding, will keep your hearts and minds safe, in Christ Jesus. (Philippians 4:7)

PRAYER: O God, in joy and with thanksgiving we come to Thee in prayer, for in Thee we find security and peace. Strengthen us as we face the unknown this day and every day. Amen.

Separate SS checks sought

Q. My wife and I are drawing social security benefits on my account number. The check comes with both our names on it. Can we get separate checks?

A. Yes. Both you and your wife should sign a statement saying that you want separate checks in the future. These statements should be made at your social security office.

Q. I am entitled to Medicare but I have never received any monthly checks because I am still working. I will be 72 in a month, what do I have to do to start my checks?

A. There is nothing you have to do to start your checks. The program center should begin your payment automatically.

Q. When I filed for social security for myself and my son I was told he could receive monthly benefits until he was 18. He will be getting married in 2 months and is only 17, will he still receive social security benefits?

A. No. Benefits to a child are terminated if he or she should get married regardless of what age.

Q. I just found out I will be unable to go back to work. I know it will be 5 months before I can draw a Social Security disability check. Would I also have to wait to draw a disability payment under the Supplemental Security Income program?

A. No, there is no waiting period. However the same disability criteria must be met as with Social Security disability payments. If you meet those requirements and the income and resources limitation you can receive benefits.

Q. I am only 60 and receive state welfare payments because I am disabled and can't work. Can I apply for Supplemental Security Income payments?

A. You need not make application. You will continue to receive payments but they will come from the Federal General Fund.

Q. I am receiving a disability check each month from the State. Can I also get a disability check under the new Supplemental Security Income program?

A. The new Federal program replaces the state program of payments to the aged, blind and disabled, therefore your payments will continue but your check will come from the Federal general revenues rather than the state.

Q. Is there an age requirement for disability benefits under Supplemental Security Income, i.e., do I have to be 50 or 60 years old?

A. No. Supplemental Security Income is based on the severity of disability and the individual need for financial assistance.

Q. Is there a waiting period necessary before payment can be received?

A. No payment can be made under the Supplemental Security Income before January 1974 but that is only because that is the date the law became effective. There is no waiting period from the time of disability to the date of eligibility for payment.

What's the law?

The case of the collared girl watcher

By Jack Strauu, LL.B.

Chester was an extremely broad- minded individual. Every night, he'd go to his favorite corner in town and, standing quietly off the the side, admire, sighfully, every attractive girl that passed by. One night, however, his enchantment was abruptly interruped by two police officers who arrested him on charges of violating an ordinance that provided, in effect: "No person shall loiter on street corners."

"It was the same thing every night," the arresting officers told the judge. "Chester would turn up on that corner and look the girls up and down like a mouse eyeing a piece of cheese."

"So what?" retorted Chester. "There's no harm in that. Girl watching is an all- American pastime and any law that prohibits it can't be legal. I wasn't loitering, I was concentrating."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail girl- watching Chester for violating the anti- loitering ordinance?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that "loitering" as such is not a crime. It can become a crime, noted the judge, only if it is done for a reason prohibited by law. And, he concluded, Chester's reason for standing on the corner was not so prohibited.

Mideast trip may yield formal peace proposal

MADRID (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for the Middle East today with high hopes that he can "grease the way" for an agreement between Egypt and Israel to pull back their armies intermingled around the Suez Canal.

A senior official said Kissinger may emerge with a formal proposal to put before the Geneva peace conference, but even if he does not he expects to bring the two sides close enough together to negotiate a disengagement.

Kissinger stopped off in Spain to meet Pedro Cortina, the new foreign minister in a government that was substantially revised following the assassination Dec. 20 of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco. Kissinger will fly to Aswan, Egypt, in midafternoon and may meet immediately with President Anwar Sadat upon arrival.

The Egyptians already have made several concrete proposals and Kissinger received "a pretty good idea" of Israel's position from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan last weekend in Washington. Now, the U.S. official said, he is ready to shuttle between Egypt and Israel over the next few days in order to overcome their mutual distrust and smooth out the "technical issues" that stand in the way of disengagement.

If his middleman role is productive, Kissinger intends to shuttle back and forth twice between Sadat in Aswan, where he is recovering from bronchitis, and the Israeli Cabinet in Jerusalem. He also probably will expand his travels to Jordan for a session with King Hussein, to Damascus to see President Hafez Assad and to Brussels on the way home to brief European ministers.

Initially, Kissinger had planned only three days on the road but his trip evidently will expand to at least one week.

"What we expect to do on this trip, is to see whether we can transform the general ideas that have up to now been advanced into a concrete proposal," Kissinger said in a Thursday news conference.

He again denied that he expects to return to Washington with an agreement. But he was optimistic that the likely outcome "would be a negotiation which would be conducted" at the Geneva peace conference site.

Kissinger flew all night, leaving shortly before 1 a.m. EST. He scheduled a two-hour stop in Madrid to discuss a military base arrangement with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina.

The next scheduled destination was the southern Egyptian city of Aswan where President Anwar Sadat is recuperating from bronchitis.

Patrol satellite station to work 16-hour day

The Troop E satellite station of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, which opened in October at 111 Edward St., will advance to a 16- hour day next week.

Lt. W. E. Lemonds, who supervises the station for the three zones it covers — Cape Girardeau, Sikeston and Portageville — said demand for services is increasing.

Most of this is for public service information, he said, including weather data, weights for vehicles, driver's license examinations and motor vehicle inspections.

Many motorists, now aware of the Sikeston services of the patrol, are making calls here rather than to Troop E headquarters at Poplar Bluff.

The station is now manned by three state weight inspectors, who serve as dispatchers and radio operators. Assigned are Burl J. Givens, Robert D. Landers and Larry Steward.

The station is located near the east city limits one block north of Malone Avenue in facilities of the State Highway Department's maintenance department.

Lt. Lemonds said radio contact is maintained with all but the northern part of the Cape Girardeau zone. The antenna at this time is not of sufficient height to reach into north Cape Girardeau County and into Perry County, he said.

Troopers in the three zones on the eastern edge of Troop E maintain their radio contacts through the headquarters, rather than through Sikeston, Lt. Lemonds said.

He noted that the station also serves as a stock center for supplies for the three zones, providing more immediate access for patrol officers than the Poplar Bluff headquarters.

Lt. Lemonds, who now lives in Poplar Bluff, will soon move to Sikeston to be in immediate contact with his new assignment.

Phelps receives gavel from Sikeston family

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — It seems that as soon as Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps has one of his gavels swiped, a new one arrives in the mail.

Before Christmas, Phelps' gavel disappeared after several senators complained he banged it too loudly.

He received a new one after Christmas from R. I. Morton of Columbia. Phelps had a noticeably lighter touch on the Senate rostrum this week.

But Wednesday, the gavel Morton sent also turned up missing.

Phelps' mail Thursday contained a new gavel from Mrs. Charles B. Stone of Sikeston. It was made by her husband, whose hobby is woodcraft.

Electric power in Morley was interrupted several times during the night as Missouri Utilities crews worked to repair downed lines in the area.

Power was off in Bloomfield for approximately two hours early today, but no other power failures were reported in Stoddard County. Heavily traveled roads and highways are clear, but country roads and city side streets are still icy. Tree limbs were reported down all over the county. The only schools closed were at Bloomfield and Bell City.

Schools were open in Mississippi County and roads were clear with only patches of ice, according to a spokesman for radio station KYMO in East Prairie. No power outages were reported.

No electrical power failure from falling wires was reported in New Madrid today. However, Municipal Light and Power Co. crews were trimming ice- laden tree limbs as a preventive measure.

New Madrid County R- 1 schools were in session today after being dismissed early Wednesday.

He said a pay hike for his staff is a number one priority.

The committee did not dispute him. He asked for a $12.6 million budget, about 15 per cent over his current appropriation.

Camp's goals for this year include in-service staff training, more staff decision making, an inmates' literacy program to combat the 18 per cent illiteracy rate in prisons, and a raise in inmate wages from a 4 cents per hour maximum to a $50 per month maximum.

"A man in confinement can find more reward from helping another inmate than in any other way," Camp said, about the literacy program where inmates would teach each other. He said he worked in similar programs which have succeeded.

Prison industries should offer jobs more like the "real workaday world," he said.

Committee Chairman Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, said, "Some of your objectives are tremendous," but worried about the costs of bringing prison job training up to date.

Camp said his budget will save the state money by preventing crime and recidivism.

You don't like the way the country looks? Don't just stand there bemoaning the mess. Pick up a broom, a shovel, a rake! Start where you are and do what you can. Begin with your own back yard ... your own street ... then look at your neighborhood ... your town. Pick up after yourself. Ask others to do their part. Ice topples tree limb

One of the many problems the ice storm brought to Sikeston is falling tree limbs. This one brought more trouble than most when it toppled late Thursday night at the intersection of South New Madrid and Daniel streets. Until the tree-sized branch is clared, traffic will find it dangerous and all but impossible to move through on South New Madrid. Another problem related to the falling limb hazard involves power lines that are broken as the limbs fall. Utility crews worked much of Thursday night to repair downed lines.

Ratchford asks budget increase

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, president of the University of Missouri, asked the House Appropriations Committee Thursday to approve a $222.5 million budget for fiscal year 1974-75. The request includes about $110 million in state funds.

The budget request is an increase of over $15 million over the university's current budget.

Ratchford told the committee the university was hit with inflationary pressures and would require additional funds for the costs of a larger enrollment next year, a 6 per cent wage adjustment, an inflationary adjustment of t per cent and fixed costs.

"Even at that," he said, "we would have to absorb some inflationary impact." He said the 5 per cent inflation factor on non-salary items is insufficient to meet increased costs.

Rep. Les Langsford, R-Springfield, questioned university representatives about what he felt were ambiguous listings under the university's listing of instructional budget items. Langsford said he wanted to find out how many people listed in the instructional category were actually teaching.

Ratchford said the 6 per cent wage hike was the figure recommended by the governor. He called that proposed increase minimal.

Rep. Gladys Marriott, D-Kansas City, said many professors at the University of Missouri said the legislature had failed to appropriate money for salary increases.

She asked Ratchford to distribute a memorandum telling them that the money is appropriated by the legislature and the university decides how it will be distributed.

Ratchford agreed to the request.

Ratchford said 49,000 students were enrolled at the campuses of the University of Missouri and about 11,000 degrees were granted last year.

The committee also approved an emergency substitute bill to fund the House and Senate for the remainder of the special session. Total funds appropriated totaled $285,700.

Also included in the emergency bill was $8,358,506 for the Department of Welfare and $517,000 for the food stamp program.

Committee members also heard testimony on a dispute between the University of Missouri and the Division of Insurance.

The department has been critical of the university action in awarding an insurance contract to an Illinois firm which did not submit the low bid.

Testimony was postponed until Jan. 21 to give committee members an opportunity to review a report on the matter prepared by the university.

State Prisons Director George Camp and members of the Senate Appropriations Committee sat down for more than an hour Thursday night and discussed penal budgets and philosophy.

They agreed state corrections officers are some of the most poorly paid prison staff in the nation.

The officers average $448 monthly pay which is less than the monthly pay of the Jefferson City police and the $714 pay monthly of guards at the federal prison at Springfield, Mo., Camp said.

"The low salary of corrections officers has been absolutely unreal," said Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, "We have to have the people employed at the institutions wanting to come to work."

Young said the Corrections Department's first fiscal 1974-75 budget request of $15 million was due several years ago. Camp said half of the workers at state prisons must hold second

License bill would protect farmer

JEFFERSON CITY-- State Rep. F. E. (Gene) Copeland, (D- New Madrid), has introduced a bill designed to keep farm vehicle owners from being penalized by an Attorney- General's ruling prohibiting quarterly licensing of equipment used in seasonal hauling of agricultural commodities.

Rep. Copeland said quarterly licensing had been permitted for years in Missouri, avoiding a hardship on owners of vehicles used for hauling cotton and other agricultural commodities, as well as in some cases trucks used for hauling pre- mixed concrete.

"What the Attorney-General did," Copeland said, "was to compel the man who used an agricultural vehicle for only three months a year to pay for licensing for an entire year, and be penalized in addition if he did not get the licensing done by Jan. 15."

"Since the entire history of vehicle licensing is to license vehicles used on public highways, then I feel they should not have to be licensed when they are not used on highways."

Lone gunman robs IGA

KENNETT, Mo. (AP)—A lone gunman held up a Kennett food store just before midnight Thursday and escaped with about $3,000 in cash, police said.

Police said the robber, who was armed but not wearing a mask, ordered Curtis Sawyer, a 19-year-old clerk at Gowan's IGA food store, to empty the contents of his cash register into a brown paper bag. The store is open 24 hours a day.

Authorities said another clerk, Sterling Staggs, 30, was hit on the side of the head twice by the bandit. Staggs was treated at a Kennett hospital.

Police said the robber ran into a customer as he fled from the store, and two other customers in the store at the time of the robbery were not aware of the incident.

Hitchhikers say clothes stolen

Two Lansing, Mich., youths told police Thursday that two travel bags of clothing had been stolen from them by people who gave them a ride to Sikeston.

Robert Cannon said he and Randy Tuper were picked up on Interstate 55 south of Sikeston while hitchhiking. He said they were let out of the car at the Interstate 57 overpass. As they got out, he said, the people drove off, taking their clothing.

The car had Ohio license plates, Cannon said, and had two young men with long hair in it.

Tools taken from parked truck

Tools valued at $318 were stolen Thursday night from the back of a truck parked at the Imperial Bowling Lanes on East Malone Ave., according to police.

The truck and tools were owned by David Murphy of Mountain Home, Ark.

Taken were a chain saw, tool box and tools, two jacks and a briefcase.

The theft occurred between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Ice, wind down power lines

Ice and wind combined during the night to bring down scores of telephone and power lines in Sikeston and the surrounding area.

Power outages were also reported in Morley and Bloomfield.

Dick Inman, director of municipal utilities in Sikeston, said all work crews were out until 12:30 a.m. today. One crew remained on duty for the balance of the night.

The worst outage occurred at 7:30 p.m. and lasted nearly an hour when a limb dropped on a line on Tanner Street, knocking out power in an area from Tanner Street to Wakefield Street and from North Kingshighway to Taylor Street.

Inman said limbs were still dropping on lines early this morning and crews were repairing the breaks as quickly as possible.

A spokesman for Missouri Utilities said spot outages were occurring on his company's lines, also. Most of the outages were outside of Sikeston, he said.

Mike Smith, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. office in Sikeston, said between 50 and 75 telephone lines were down this morning, affecting 250 to 300 customers.

Smith said not all of the affected phone customers were without service, but many had noise on the line.

Most of the lines were brought down by the wind, which picked up during the night, he said.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock said street crews were cleaning up without too much trouble.

An ice storm early in 1972 cost the city $15,000 in clean- up bills.

Roads and highways in Scott County were reported mostly clear except for ice patches. Some of the lesser traveled roads still had an ice cover on them.

All schools in north Scott County were closed today, except for Thomas W. Kelly

Harrington trial set Jan. 31

BENTON— The trial of James "Peterboy" Harrington, 24, on a first-degree murder charge, in connection with the 1971 slaying of Kenneth Ellison in Sikeston, has been set for Jan. 31.

The defense counsel made a motion in Circuit Court Thursday before Judge Marshall Craig that the state produce any written statements of Harrington and produce the names and addresses of all witnesses. The court granted the motion and also instructed the state to furnish the defense with names and addresses of all law enforcement officials who have taken an oral statement from Harrington.

Attorney Robert Dempster, who previously had been appointed special prosecutor to assist Pros. Atty. Jim Moore at the request of the Ellison family, was granted permission to enter the case Wednesday in Magistrate Court by Judge Lloyd Briggs despite an oral motion of objection filed by the defense. It was erroneously reported in Thursday's edition of The Daily Standard that Dempster was denied the right to enter the case.

MIND- MUDDLING MEMOS

Armies may move on their stomachs, but bureaucracies move on their memorandums. A few clues as to why the Federal bureaucracy doesn't always move that well are contained in a new book compiled by The Washington Monthly magazine. Its title: "Memo of the Month."

Some sample memos:

* Sent on September 10, 1971 to commanding officers of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet: "Subj.: Refreshments in wardroom.

"1. For your information and action as you see fit, I have personally overheard Admiral Bell say many times that he does not like to see Kool-aid served in the wardrooms of ships. Over to you. Respectfully, J. E. McCauley, Captain, U. S. Navy."

* March 31, 1972 from Jerris Leonard, Administrator of Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, to all employees: "Effective today, the name change of the Office of General Counsel to the Office of Legal Counsel is rescinded and the current Office of Legal Counsel is redesignated Office of General Counsel."

* Undated memo from James D. Hodgson, Under Secretary of the Department of Labor, to "supervisory personnel" regarding the 1969 Savings Bond Campaign:

"1. There will be no pressure put upon employees, but all will be seriously urged to sign up ... 5. Any person who does not sign the (pledge) card after a discussion with his supervisor will be talked to by the next higher level of supervision to insure he or she is fully aware of the importance the Department places on this program."

* July 24, 1973 from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to job applicant Tracer F. Tunley. The form memo read, in part, "A review of your application indicates that you are not qualified because: --". The reason, neatly handwritten next to the box marked "other" was: "You were not selected."

The book's concluding memo, something of a classic one year hence, was written on January 2, 1973 on White House stationery:

"TO: John Dean
"From: Charles Colson
"Now what the hell do I do?"

Intensive research is going on at the University of Florida on a new glass- ceramic material found to be compatible with living tissue. It has been tested successfully in animals as a bone replacement and as a wound covering. In addition, artificial teeth made of the material are being investigated.

One startling findings so far is that "just as human bone is resorbed and replaced by new bone, so is the bioglass - ceramic substance resorbed and gradually replaced by ingrowth of new cells," said Dr. Homer Paschall, research director. "It is apparent that the artificial substance has a physiology of its own. It also indicates that implants made from this material would, in time, be replaced by natural bone."

As promising as the material is, much reasearch remains to be done before human patients may benefit, the investigator said.

NEW YORK (AP) — You may feel like a colt, but your years are showing if—

You're getting along nicely with the new bifocals you fought against wearing for so long.

The world is getting far too regimented, you conclude, whenever you have to fill out a printed form.

You can't offhand recall the birthday of anyone under 35 and, furthermore, you don't see any reason why you should.

Every day it is a struggle for you to decide whether to have two Martinis for lunch — or none at all. But you never have just one.

Your shirtfront keeps creeping out of your pants band, and you spend most of the day trying to tuck it back in.

Your wife takes the family dog for a walk twice a day and, if the weather isn't too bad, you take your wife for a walk once every week or so.

If baseball was good enough for your father, it's good enough for you, and you can't see how or why pro football, basketball and hockey have become so popular — to say nothing of tennis.

If you get up to dance with a lady, you automatically start to slip your arm around her back, no matter what style of music the band is playing.

Office gossip isn't half as interesting as it used to be, because so much of it now is about new members on the staff you don't really know.

You are too smart anymore to advance a new idea during a staff conference, because you have learned from long experience that if you do, the boss will assign you the job of making it work out.

Anyway, who wants anything new in his life when he already has too many old troubles to cope with?

But if these signs all point to you, you may not just be getting older. You may already have become a fossil.

While cleaning out our desk recently, we came across a clipping from another publication entitled "What The Constitution Means To You." The list of guarantees to the American people sometimes gets lost in the shuffle of political power and government crisis which diverts our attention from the strength of our Constitution. Here's what the Constitution means to each citizen:

It establishes for you a stable and responsible government.

It makes you a citizen of the United States if native born.

It gives you citizenship, if foreign born, on complying with liberal naturalization laws.

It allows you a voice in the government through the officials whom you help elect.

It guarantees you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

It defends your rights even against the government itself.

It makes you equal with all men before the law.

It accords you free, lawful speech.

It guards your property rights.

It prohibits the government from taking your property without due process of law.

It lets you hold any office in the gift of the nation for which you are qualified.

It enables you to become a citizen of any state.

It prevents you from being held to answer to a complaint unless you have been lawfully accused.

It grants you the right of habeas corpus, that is, the right to know why you are held a prisoner.

It assures you a speedy trial.

It permits your having counsel for defense.

It prevents your being tried again if once acquitted.

It permits you to have a trial in the state and district in which you may be charged with an offense against the laws.

It lends you the power of government to compel witnesses to appear in your behalf.

It forbids excessive bail.

It forbids excessives fines or cruel punishment.

It protects you from slavery in any form.

It keeps any state from depriving you of your constitutional rights.

It guarantees you that the legal obligation of contracts shall not be impaired.

It permits you to participate in amendment of the Constitution from time to time.

WILL THE REAL ISSUE NOW PLEASE STAND UP?

If President Nixon's recent press conference did not provide definitive answers to the very alarming experience called Watergate, it was at least the President's first real gesture of respect for the intelligence of the American public since the scandal became a national pasttime some six months ago.

In retrospect, it appears that Mr. Nixon's ungentle give-and - take with the press has had the effect of clearing away some of the murk that has settled over the White House during the past months. One wonders why the man has chosen to make life so difficult for himself by keeping silent for so long.

A number of glaring factual contradictions still remain, as well as several new questions raised by the President, himself. For instance, what "well known" and "large scale" program of burglary and surveillance did the Johnson administration pursue? What Supreme Court decision of last year justified the President's 1970 plan for a gestapo - like supra-legal security force?

Still, despite these and other questions, the press conference — in marked, qualitative difference from Mr. Nixon's Watergate monologue the previous week — has substantially ventilated the controversy.

Now, hopefully, the one critical issue underlying the Watergate events will surface. Until it is met head-on, it can only spread doubt across the future of American constitutional government.

The issue is not the narrow question which has become Sen. Howard Baker's favorite cul-de-sac: What did the President know and when did he know it?

Nor is it, as the President would have us think, the principle of confidentiality or the question of separation of powers.

It is the use of the term "national security" by Congress, the courts and the executive to explain and excuse a whole category of actions which would not be tolerated in a non-national - security situation.

Just what does "national security" mean? What precisely constitutes a threat to the safety of the country?

The administration has repeatedly cited Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's disclosure of the Pentagon Papers as a critical threat to the "national security."

But the fact is, there is nothing in that voluminous record of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations that told the North Vietnamese or the Viet Cong anything they did not know before. The papers contained absolutely no military or strategic information. All the papers revealed, in fact, was the duplicity of Johnson, Rusk, McNamara et. al. in saying one thing to the American people while doing another in Vietnam.

From the Kennedy through the Nixon administrations, the term "national security" has grown to an American equivalent of "royal prerogative." It does not portend a healthy future for our consititutional government.

If "national security" is to be used as an umbrella for extralegal activities, then it has to be defined — as precisely as any criminal code is defined.

When we know what specific types of activity threaten the country's safety, when we enumerate precise categories of information which truly need to be safeguarded — such as weapons systems specifications, when we define the scope of executive authority in this area, then we will know what rules we are living under.

Until then, "Watergate" will remain a synonym for government by whim.

A woman driving a station wagon full of little children, couldn't see the red light until she was right on top of it because a large truck had stopped in the lane next to the curb. As a resul she almost ran down an elderly gentleman crossing the street before she could manage to stop.

Peering over his bifocals, he raged at her, "It looked like you don't know when to stop."

STRAIGHTJACKETING YOUR DOCTOR

The average person holds his doctor in high regard. Yet, he appears to accept all too easily the belief that a government - controlled, tax-supported medical care system is either inevitable or superior to the voluntary, free choice system of the present. In short, in spite of the esteem in which the doctor as an individual is held, a great many people would evidently go along with adoption of a system of medical and health care that would impose compulsion on the medical profession.

The irony of the situation is beyond comprehension. We all profess to believe in the rights and freedoms of our fellowmen. Much of the turbulence today is attributable to efforts to assure those rights to minorities and various other groups. And yet politicians propose, and a lot of people accept, the doctrine of compulsion so far as doctors are concerned. The only justification for such action is sheer expediency. The medical profession represents a body of highly - trained citizens -- a body prossessed of lifesaving skills and talents that are in great demand. The idea behind the more extreme national health insurance proposals is simply to seize these skills and talents and regiment them in a system where they are supposed to be at the disposal of the public on demand at a price set by government.

The next time you hear a politician promising medical pie- in- the - sky, just remember his promises are based upon sacrificing the rights and freedoms of an important group of American citizens -- the profession of medicine. Few of us would wish to sentence our family doctor to this kind of compulsion. We should think long and hard before going along with such schemes for the profession of which he is a part.

RETURN TO THE SEA

Incredible as it now appears there was a time, a few years ago, when it was an exceedingly uphill job to convince people in the great hinterland of America that the United States is a maritime nation in which leaders went ahead with imaginative innovations in ship design and cargo- handling technology with full knowledge that a day was coming when our country would recognize the value of its ships.

America's return to the sea began to pick up momentum with the passage of the Merchant Marine Act of 1970. At last a new and highly efficient merchant fleet is on the way and none too soon. The Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Maritime Affairs, Mr. Robert J. Blackwell, has pointed out that as late as last year American-flag ships carried but 4 per cent of the 410 million tons of bulk commodities that moved in our foreign trade. He reported that, "More than two thirds of this tonnage constituted bulk imports, reflecting our heavy reliance on foreign raw materials to keep the wheels of industry turning. All signs indicate that these imports will continue to show a substantial growth in the years ahead ... we foresee ... (them) rising to 485 million tons in 1975, 715 million tons in 1980 and more than 1 billion tons by 1985." A new generation of oil tankers and liquefied natural gas carriers are destined to become an energy lifeline for the U. S. in the very near future. Their cargoes will be a major part of increased U. S. imports.

America's reawakening to the importance of ships and the sea is one of the most tangible indications of an ability to resolve energy and other resource problems with realistic action.

TRAVEL TO ENEMY COUNTRIES

The House Committee on Internal Security recently considered a proposal to restrict travel to countries which are at war with the United States. At the hearings, testimony by former U.S. prisoners of war and their wives revealed why this legislation is desirable.

Air Force Captain Larry Carrigan told the committee that after a member of Women Strike for Peace visiting Hanoi described Carrigan as "a wayward individual," his North Vietnamese captors moved him to another camp where they "really pounded on me."

Other POWs testifying before the committee described the torture and solitary confinement which frequently resulted from visits to Hanoi by anti- war activists. These visitors encouraged Hanoi to conclude that our citizens did not support the war and did not care what the communists did.

Lieutenant Commander Thomas Hall said that these visits also "had a demoralizing effect on POWs. What bothered us most was not just what they had to say, but the fact that Americans were walking around free in Hanoi while we were in prison."

Three POW wives also testified to the committee, pointing out the difficulties to which they were subjected by the goups visiting Hanoi. The pro- North Vietnam Committee of Liaison delivered letters from POWs, but included communist and anti-war propaganda with every letter. "I can never forget the hardship the Committee of Liaison caused," Mrs. Edwin Shuman said.

We must hope and pray that our country can live at peace, but if in peace or war, steps must be taken to avoid giving aid and comfort to our enemies.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Secret Aramco Memos Point to More Oil Troubles

WASHINGTON-- The final lifting of the Arab oil embargo, according to secret reports from the Saudi Arabian fields, won't bring the promished gush of oil.

The reports have been shown to us by sources inside Aramco, the multinational, multibillion consortium which developed the Saudi fields. There are four Aramco partners-- Exxon, Mobil, Standard of California and Texaco-- each an oil giant in its own right.

In these reports, which have been withheld from both the Saudi and U. S. governments, Aramco engineers have warned that "severe technical difficulties" have hampered production.

Their best estimate is that production will be "stabilized" at no more than 7.5 million barrels a day. This is less than half the 20 million barrels that the Saudis promised if their political terms were met.

GREED

But the real scandal, if the engineering reports are correct, is that the production foul- up was caused by Aramco's greed.

For three decades, Aramco has been pumping oil from under the sands of the sheikdom and paying the Saudis mere alms.

Not only are the fabulous, one- sided oil concessions of the past now at an end, but the company fears that its whole Saudi operation will be taken over by the government. The secret Aramco memos are full of references to "possible nationalization" and "unstable political conditions."

A year ago, the memos predicted nationalization would come "well before 1980." More recent memos warn that the takeover may be only two or three years away.

Aramco, therefore, began draining every drop of oil that could be sold from its Saudi wells. The daily production was increased from 6.5 million barrels in 1972 to nine million barrels in 1973. The company had set a 9.3- million- barrel production goal by the end of the year.

EXISTING FIELDS

The corporate objective, according to the secret memos, was to increase production from existing fields without spending any more money than necessary on developing new wells.

The rush to get the oil out caused technical problems. As early as last June, engineers warned that production was too fast. Their secret reports tell of "huge pressure drops" and "erratic production."

The hurried production, according to the reports, created "tremendous volumes" of natural gas, which simply had to be burned off. At a steadier production rate, the reports state, the gas could be compressed and reinjected into the formation.

This would cost a little development money, but it would increase the pressurization and permit more oil to be pumped from existing wells.

However, the documents make clear that Aramco is not interested in preserving petroleum for the Saudi government to expropriate but only in removing as much as possible before nationalization takes place.

NO SHORTAGE

There is no shortage of oil under the Saudi sands. The baren, baked desert virtually floats on a sea of petroleum. The engineering reports, indeed, are highly critical of Aramco's management for failing to conduct adequate "development drilling" and "reservoir analysis."

But plainly, the company is unwilling to invest substantial sums in developing Saudi Arabia's vast oil reserves unless the government makes the risk worthwhile.

One memo estimates that it would cost Aramco $1 billion to increase production. The money is needed for drilling new wells and building more pipelines and storage tanks. Even if this vast investment is made, according to the memo, no substantial increase in production could be expected before 1977.

The Aramco documents show that the company, meanwhile, is concentrating on draining the fields it has already developed. Only 14 of the 20 known fields are now being worked, according to the engineering reports, and substantial production is coming from only 12. Geological surveys indicate that many more fields merely await exploration and development.

SUSPICIONS AROUSED

When the Saudis offered to increase production to 20 million barrels daily, they evidently didn't know about the technical difficulties that have developed. Their suspicions, apparently, were aroused. But the secret reports indicate they were kept in the dark about the seriousness of the troubles.

This is vigorously denied by an official spokesman for the oil consortium. He assured us that the company is developing Saudi Arabia's oil reserves as fast as feasible and that the technical problems haven't been serious. He specifically denied that the company's carelessness will limit future production to about 7.5 million barrels daily, without heavy investments.

We quoted some of the memos to him including one which declared the "reservoir pressures" fluctuated so greatly that the engineers estimated the daily production would be held at "no more than 7.5 million barrels."

This memo, said the spokesman, was "all wet, completely erroneous." The welfare of the West may depend, to a large extent, on who's telling the truth- the secret memos or the official spokesman.

For Saudi Arabia is the western world's oil jugular.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Counterattacking the Environmentalists:

Labor Chiefs Sue 'Bird Watchers' Audubon Society For Millions, Charging Destruction of Jobs

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.-- Now the working class is taking on the "bird watchers"-- in the courts-- in a class action suit.

It would all have a Gilbert and Sullivan swing were the union leaders not setting vital precedent with their move for legal relief from the environmentalists whose civil suits have stalled billions of dollars worth of strategic construction projects across the nation.

The site of battle-- in addition to the circuit court-- is a bird- breeding ground on nearby Blunt Island. The question is, what's more vital, bird breeding or a nuclear-breeding power plant construction complex which the Offshore Power Systems combine plans to build there?

It all began "on or about" April 3, 1972: The J. A. Jones Construction Co. contracted with the Northeast Florida Building and Construction Trades Council (AFL- CIO) and its 16 unions to work on a new facility for the assembly line production of nucelar power plants.

Each of these, pumping out 1.15 million kilowatts of electricity, would be a world "first." They would be portable. They would be towed to "parking" sites off the Atlantic and Gulf coasts near big cities. The first is-- or was-- destined for the watery environs of Atlantic City, N. J.

Steve Leslie, leader of the Operating Engineers national Dredgemen's Union and general vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, described what happened:

"A federal dredging permit was issued. . .to build a plant where they will construct the world's first offshore floating nuclear power station.

"Exactly four hours after the permit was issued, the bird watchers in the Audubon Society filed suit in the federal court in Washington, D. C., and had a U. S. district judge suspend the permit until a preliminary hearing can be held and (it can be determined) whether the matter will go to a full trial."

The dredging contractor was ready to move in on the first step of the projected $250 million project. The operator had two large hydraulic dredges employing over 200 men to muck out, backfill and dig the channels for the actual construction of the plant and to develop waters navigable to the ocean. But the bird watchers stopped it all dead in its muck.

Then history was made. The northeast Florida unions jointly, through their council and leaders, sued the Florida Audubon Society for relief.

The unions charged the bird fanciers with "frivolously, willfully and maliciously" commencing a "course of conduct of interference with the contract rights of the plaintiffs (the union members-- VR) in such a manner that the. . .project (the nuclear plant assembly line complex-- VR) and the construction thereof and the completion of the aforesaid project agreement has been halted and prevented."

The Florida construction unions now want damages paid their members by the Audubon Society. Some $125 million worth of damages. This is the figure estimated in wages during the construction of the portable nuclear plants. The Atomic Energy Commission now is considering applications for licensing of eight such towable electricity units.

The implication is clear. The labor movement is charging the environmentalists with full responsibility for loss of wages blocked by ecologists' civil court actions. If this position is maintained all the way up through the Supreme Court, a historic battle will have been won.

The plaintiff unions also seek the full roster of Florida Audubon Society membership and officials. The insinuation here is legal action against the individual members too.

Countering the bird watchers, the union brief states that the "defendants have conceded that a majority of citizens of this (Jacksonville) area are in favor of the project." Further, the labor leaders state, the project is "overwhelmingly supported by local government officials, community leaders and all other persons interested in economic, financial and long-time well- being of the community."

I especially love cats, dogs, too, birds, of course, and even once had a pet crocodile in the Eastern Congo. But it does appear the labor leaders have a good case against the bird watchers-- especially in these parlous times.

DAEOC to hold elections

The Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation has announced that elections to select members of the board of directors to represent the poor will be held Feb. 4, at each of the 12 Area Opportunity Centers operated by DAEOC in the six- county Delta Area. The election will be held from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Two board members from each of the lower three counties will be selected. Each of the two centers in Pemiscot, Dunklin and New Madrid counties will elect one board member.

The upper three counties of Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi will have one elected board member per county. In these three counties, the two centers in each county will elect their area representatives on Feb. 4. Another election, Feb. 11, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., will be held to select one person from the two who received the most votes in the election held Feb. 4, which will provide the one elected board member from that county.

Those nominated for the elections must be from the low- income group, or their elected representative, since he or she will be the DAEOC Board Representative of the poor in the six- county area, and must voice the problems of the poor to DAEOC in order to obtain programs to solve those problems through community action.

All people are creative

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Some people are creative ... or perhaps we should say all of them are! It's apparent, however, that some people are more creative than others in the way they respond to people or work or leadership roles.

All of us are creative, but we don't usually make the best use of our creative abilities. In fact, one authority recently estimated that the average individual has fewer than five creative ideas in his lifetime.

Creativity has become a very common term. A major problem, however, in talking about creativity, is that no one really knows what the term encompasses. Social scientists studying creativity hope someday to be able to measure it on standardized tests, much like intelligence or personality tests we're all familiar with.

In the meantime, we might think of creativity as involving varied and original responses. It also includes some ability to visualize, foresee and generate ideas.

Research on creativity suggests that creative people are rather independent, widely interested in cultural and intellectual affairs, frankly open to their own feelings and emotions and understand self- awarness.

Many creative people, contrary to popular opinion, don't exhibit unusually high academic ability. But nearly all of them are spontaneous, flexible, enjoy risks and are open to new experiences. They represent what we all desire: People in the process of becoming.

Elizabeth Allstrom in her book, "You Can Teach Creatively", suggests when creativity is encouraged and nurtured, it grows and increases ... when neglected or ignored, it often disappears, possibly never to return. Creativity generates self- confidence, courage, a feeling of adequacy and the ability to see what others often fail to see.

These are all things we hope youth can achieve as they grow and develop. As a parent or teacher, you have many opportunities to encourage creativity through your behavior, as well as by what you say.

In the article in National 4-H News, some ways to increase one's creativity were suggested. Some of them are to guess reasons for others' attitudes, expressions and actions, take time to question and investigate, develop an awareness of new or unusual uses for common objects.

A fun activity to stimulate divergent and creative thinking is to list ways you can use a coffee cup, or draw objects using several circles, all the same size. In a creativity test, there aren't any right or wrong answers, just unique ideas and creative responses.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Some nutty couple wrote to say you had ruined what might have been a great party by declaring that people who need booze in order to have a good time were either stupid or flaky. They decided to see if you were right, and at their next party they served only soft drinks. It was a real bomb. Everyone left early. Her husband got drunk by himself.

Well, I don't drink--- ever. And, I'm sure I have a better time than most people I've observed in varying stages of inebriation.

One evening, in order to prove my point, I took my tape recorder to a party of several long- time friends. I picked up some of the most damned- fool bits of conversation you can imagine. It surprised even me when I played the stuff back.

I invited the same crowd to my place a couple of weeks later and played the tapes for them. A few of the guests didn't like it and said so. They left in a huff. (The worse they sounded the madder they got.) But those tapes of mine put four couples on the wagon, and it's been over a year, so it was worth it. Any person who thinks he sounds the same after a third drink is mistaken and I don't care how well he holds his liquor.-- Proof Positive

Dear P. P.: First of all, bugging a private conversation without the victim's knowledge is a rotten trick, if not a legal violation. I agree that a drinker is not a very good judge of anything, especially his own behavior, but YOUR behavior-- and your methods of proving the point are reprehensible.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 23- year- old virgin. Shocked? Most people are, but it doesn't bother me. I'm in no hurry to get married. The right man hasn't come along yet and I don't believe in giving free samples.

I've dated dozens of men, some interesting, others bores. Nearly all of them have tried to get me to go to bed. The variety of approaches would make a fascinating book, but I'm no writer. The oldest line (and it's amazing how many men still use it) is this one: "But honey, you don't know what you're missing if you don't try it." I have a good answer: "Yeah, but if I don't try it I won't miss it."

Maybe my letter will help some other girl keep it all together. Another girl's letter helped me two years ago when I nearly lost control of the situation. Any more advice?-- C. C.

Dear C. C.: You don't need any. Thanks for a good answer to the oldest question in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't want to sound like I'm stuck on myself but I'm a 19- year-old redhead with green eyes. I've been runner- up in three beauty contests and have been told I am beautiful by several men who have been around.

The guy I am loony over stands me up at least once a week. He always has some great excuse and I find myself taking him back time and time again. We've been going together for over a year and he is still kissing me goodnight on the cheek. How can I tell if he's alive? He reads your column every day. Your answer could make a lot of difference.-- Dalia

Dear Delia: You need answers to more questions than the one you've asked, but try this, dear. Hold a mirror up to his mouth. If it fogs up, he's alive.

What's prudish? What's O. K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet: "Necking and Petting-- What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill 60654, enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Sheltered workshop explained to club

A resume of special services performed by the 78 people now participating in Sikeston Community Sheltered Workshop was given Tuesday by B. W. Gunn, workshop coordinator, at the Sikeston Women's Civic Club meeting.

Gunn said that the age differential of handicapped workers at the workshop is 17 to 57 years. Supervising personnel at the workshop are required to take training courses which enables them to better cope with medical and emotional requirements of the workers.

Gunn stated that over 100 tons of glass were sorted and recycled by the workshop during 1973. Future plans are to accept newspapers and some magazines for recycling.

Gunn added that the most pressing need of the project is a much larger building so more people can be brought into the workshop's various jobs, which are bid work contracts with local and area firms.

Workers from Sikeston and surrounding towns are transported to and from work in vans provided by and driven by qualified workshop personnel.

Twenty-four members and two guests attended the luncheon meeting at the Travelodge Restaurant. Hostesses were Mrs. Ewart Taylor, Mrs. Max Chandler and Mrs. Roy Marks.

The Christmas Home tour co-chairwomen, Miss Almaretta Sidwell and Mrs. Leon Garnett, reported a successful project, making possible the club's ability to honor its yearly commitments to various local projects.

The Feb. 5 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maurice Stauffer on Route Two.

Indians begin MIAA wars

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State University's basketball Indians will initiate the 1974 MIAA hoop season this week end as they take on Northeast Missouri State University at Kirksville Saturday (Jan. 12) and the meet Northwest Missouri State University's Bearcats Monday (Jan. 14).

The Indians, now 4-5 for the year, hope to get their basketball apparatus back into top condition and bounce back from a 25- day period of no games.

The long layoff extended from Dec. 8 to Jan. 3 when the MIAA tournament began.

At the tourney in Springfield, Southeast Missouri State lost to the University of Missouri-- Rolla in the opener 76-67 but managed to come back and top Northeast Missouri State 74-64 and nose out Central Missouri State University 84-80 to finish fifth.

Tuesday night the Tribe encountered all sorts of problems against Arkansas State University and dropped a 67-55 decision.

The Indians seemed unable to build any enthusiasm for the game which, along with a 32 percent field showing and very few rebounds, drowned the Tribe in defeat.

Indian basketball coach Bob Cradic pointed out that both Northeast Missouri State and Northwest Missouri State are talented teams which play with spirit and pride. Cradic declared, "I will be very pleased to gain a split on this trip."

In the MIAA tournament the Bearcats wound up third while the Bulldogs took eighth, which Cradic said, "is not indicative of the talent they have."

Northeast Missouri State boasts seven lettermen back from last year including 6-7 Lee Smith who handles the center position with authority.

Northwest Missouri State has nine monogram winners from last year on its roster and Cradic regards them as "the third best team in the MIAA."

Among their better performers is 6-4 Marcus Stallings, who averaged 15.6 points per game last year and guard Melvin Harvey who netted points at an average of better than 17 per outing last season.

In looking toward the two games, Cradic pointed out the difficulty of playing on the road. He also expressed the hope that the Indians will be able to regain the desire to play which they exhibited at the MIAA tournament.

The Indians entered the 1974 portion of their schedule with two men missing.

Dennis Maritz, a 6-6 senior forward from O'Fallon, will be out of action for several weeks with a broken ankle suffered while working out during the Christmas vacation.

Also gone is guard Lennies McFerron who transferred from Three Rivers Junior College in Poplar Bluff.

The Lilbourn native, who was a starting guard during his brief stay on the Indian reservation, left the team for personal reasons.

St. Louisan Steve Valli ranks second on the team with a per game tally of 14.6. His average was bolstered during the MIAA tournament where he was selected to the all- tournament team.

NCAA rules changes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association made major changes at its 68th annual convention and admitted some measures could create future problems.

At Wednesday's final business session, the NCAA delegates voted to eliminate the mid-November date that major football bowls games were supposed to await before issuing invitations. Now the bowls, except those involving conference champions, could make their matchups early in the season.

"This new rule appears on the surface to be permissive but, in fact, it's what's prevailing now," said Bob James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference and chairman of the NCAA Extra Events Committee.

Earlier in the convention, a proposal narrowly passed which will allow athletes to play professionally in one sport and on the college level in any others.

"It's modernization," said NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers, "an accommodation to the individual athlete. It does raise many problems, however."

Southern California football star Anthony Davis, one of several athletes who could take advantage of the change, said Wednesday, "It sounds like fun."

But Davis, the football halfback who also excels in baseball, added, "If I played pro baseball, would pro football draft me?"

Other versatile NCAA athletes who could become dual-status athletes include Quinn Buckner of Indiana and Steve Bartkowski of California. The rule change came too late for the likes of Arizona State quarterback Danny White, chosen in baseball's secondary phase draft Wednesday.

Sceptics have begun talk behind the scenes here already, however, about how the rule might be abused. Couldn't wealthy alumni or others pay a college football player big money legitimately in the summer by employing him as anything from a tennis pro to a baseball player?

At the wrapup convention session, the delegates also voted Wednesday against raising current scholarship limitations in football and basketball. They also turned down a proposal that would have prohibited any recruiting contact with high school prospects before their senior vear.

Devils topple Rebels

Scouts help prepare for march

The Mother's march for the March of Dimes will be held in Sikeston on Jan. 29. At that time, mothers will go from door to door collecting contributions for the annual drive against birth defects, which last year helped purchase a fetal pacemaker for Missouri Delta Community Hospital. Junior Girl Scout Troop 3, which meets at Hunter Memorial First Presbyterian Church, is helping prepare for the drive by stuffing packets to be used in the fund drive. The girls are doing the work as partial fulfilment of requirements for Sign of the Star merit awards. From left are: Deidre Mackey, Shirley Murphy, Rita Taylor, Mrs. Ken Walters, chairman of the Mother's march; Jennifer Thornton; Stacy Ebersole; Jill Myers; Khrisy Myers; Lauri Hoper; Janet Sherman; and Amy Bass. Leaders of the troop are Mrs. Jim Wilson and Mrs. Tom Bass. (Daily Standard photo by Tim Ludwig)

Subzero cold to hit state

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Subzero cold is expected to sweep over Kansas and Missouri tonight behind the snowstorm that moved eastward out of the area.

Temperatures were expected to rise no higher than five to 10 degrees above zero today then plunge to below zero tonight as clearing skies allow a mass of polar air to take full effect.

The National Weather Service said the sun should brighten most of the area Saturday.

Travel remained hazardous as road crews continued trying to clear pavements of snow and ice.

Road conditions and the severe cold caused the closing today of almost all schools in the metropolitan Kansas City area of both Kansas and Missouri.

In addition, the cold placed such a drain on the Gas Service Co., that it reduced its supply of natural gas to the schools in Paola and Osawatomie in eastern Kansas under their interruptible contracts.

The situation duplicates an emergency that arose in December. Since then, however, Paola has installed alternate heating systems in four of its five schools, but the high school had to be closed Thursday. About 650 students may have to miss classes a week unless emergency fuel is obtained, said Supt. George Diehm.

Osawatomie closed two of its four schools because only two have been equipped with propane heaters since the December shutdown.

At least five Missouri high school basketball tournaments were postponed Thursday night.

Arrest of three solves 2 crimes

Four candy bars were taken in the break- in.

Police said the arrest of two of the juveniles also cleared up the Jan. 1 theft of a tape player from Frances MacCune, 342 Magnolia. The player was stolen from her car while it was parked at 112 Cardinal Drive.

Police said they arrested one of the teen- agers on Wednesday and the other two Thursday.

South African pastor to speak Wednesday

The Rev. Christoffel Botha, one of the first elders in the Church of the Nazarene in the South African European District, will speak next Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. in First Church of the Nazarene, Highway 61 North.

As a medical student, he sought for a Bible- preaching church and learned of the Church of the Nazarene through a friend. He became one of the first elders to be ordained in the Republic of South Africa among the Europeans.

He continued as a successful pastor through the early days of the church, building the strongest Afrikaans- speaking Dutch church on the district, and is equally fluent in English and Dutch. He is a member of the district advisory board.

The Rev. Mr. Botha has made the long trip of 12,000 miles to the United States to attend the Mid- Quadrennial Conference on Evangelism at the Nazarene world headquarters in Kansas City.

Church gains behind growth in population

WASHINGTON — America's churches and synagogues, while registering slight over-all membership gains, are failing to keep pace with national population growth, according to statistics made public by the National Council of Churches.

The latest Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches, compiled by the council, reported 6.24 per cent of United States citizens are members of churches or synagogues, compared with 63.2 per cent in the previous year.

While the figures reflect a net gain of 343,689 members, the percentage is declining because population is increasing faster than church membership.

The latest annual study, which reflects counts made in 1972 and late 1971, shows that 131,389,642 Americans are formally affiliated to a church or synagogue.

The Roman Catholic Church, the nation's largest, reported 48,390,990 members, an increase of 176,261 or one third of 1 per cent.

Southern Baptists are the largest Protestant body in the country with 11,824,676 members, a gain of 1.7 per cent over the previous year.

Statistics for this body continue to bear out the trend that traditionally conservative demoninations continue to enjoy the highest rate of membership growth, while the more liberal Protestant demoninations suffer the greatest losses.

Despite church ties

Many Quakers for Nixon ouster

NEW YORK (AP) — In the light of their particular religious links to President Richard Nixon, Quakers have been among the most outspoken of church groups in urging impeachment proceedings on his conduct, or his resignation.

Other religious bodies generally have avoided this sort of specific demand. But a growing number of Quaker meetings have issued such calls to him as a brother sharing their tradition.

"They feel a special responsibility in the matter because of his background as a Quaker," says Walter Ludwig, of Yonkers, N.Y., legislative committee chairman of the New York Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

Among the latest of the Quaker groups taking such a stand was the Stanford-Greenwich, Conn., meeting, which late last month appealed to the President as a fellow Quaker to resign from office.

Citing his Quaker background, the meeting said there appeared to be "serious discrepancies" between traditions he would be expected to respect and actions for which he was responsible, citing a list of them, and urging him to resign.

"We feel tender toward you in the moral dilemma in which you have placed yourself, and sympathize with you in your pain," the meeting added.

"However difficult your resignation may be to you personally, it would aid in dispelling the atmosphere of corruption in our national government. We pray that the power of light will give you courage and consolation."

Several other Quaker meetings, including those in Baltimore, Columbia and Adelphi, Md., have backed impeachment proceedings against the President.

Although many other church bodies have debated the issue, they mostly have refrained from demanding impeachment steps. Only sub-units of the United Methodist Church have done so among major denominations.

Most of them have stressed the need for national repentence and moral renewal. Some Quaker meetings also similarly have shunned advocating impeachment procedures.

Scripture: John 9:24-33

LIGHT FOR THE BLIND

Throughout his teaching years, Jesus recognized the physical needs of those who crowded around Him. After He cured them of these problems, He stressed their spiritual needs.

Today's message conveys more than the curing of an individual's blindness. It stresses the need to be open to new insight in order to see life in terms of Christ and His purposes.

John Milton, in calling for more freedom for writers in 1644, wrote that, "The light we have gained, was given us, not to be ever staring on, but by it to discover outward things more remote from our knowledge."

There are, of course, many persons who have perfect physical eyesight yet they are spiritually blind. The factors behind this spiritually blindness worried Christ.

In these years many persons lived under the darkness of the much earlier sin of Adam. There were many others who deliberately rejected the truth.

The central theme today is that "Christ's light brings man's true spiritual condition into the open and reveals the way from lostness to salvation."

And in today's world one of the greatest needs is for us to bring all problems out into the open and expose them to light. Only under this exposure will we be able to solve our problems and then turn to Christ for final salvation.

Jesus anointed a blind begger, healed him, and the man believed in Jesus. Since the man had been blind from birth there were those who believed he had inherited the sins of his parents. An opportunity was made available then for Jesus to explain "The light of the world."

How would we react today under such conditions? How would we feel if a member of our own family experienced such a miracle?

The neighbors of the blind man were skeptical, as were the Pharisees. Even the man's parents insisted they did not understand what had occurred.

The blind man had no doubts. When he was asked, "Do you believe in the Son of Man?" he inquired, who was "the Son of Man"? When Jesus identified Himself, the man believed.

Sometimes we fear to face the truth. The Pharisees didn't want to face the truth here. Many of the Jews refused to admit that Jesus possessed such gifts for mankind.

If a person fails to recognize God's power at work in Christ, he judges himself. Man is continually searching for light on life's problems. Positive response to Christ is a major requirement.

Men, like plants, will die without light. When we fail to accept the light of the world presented today we too will die.

One commentator on today's lesson has asked: Why do we have a wealth of information and a dearth of direction? Such a problem has existed for centuries, both before and after the years Christ spent on earth.

First-hand experience helps us all to learn and to believe. The cured man could readily believe Christ who had removed his blindness. To Jesus, however, greater faith is required of those who must depend on hearing and reading about such miracles.

Physical sight is temporary; spiritual sight is forever. Unfortunately, we tend here, as in so many instances of our lives, to think only of our day-by-day needs.

We need to have the courage of the blind man who witnessed to the disbelievers his faith. When we say "Now I see" and mean the light of Christ we then have nothing to fear.

Mrs. Zadie Wilson

Clines Island church honors oldest member

BLOOMFIELD— Mrs. Zadie (Ireland) Wilson, 503 W. Missouri St., was recently honored as the oldest member of the Clines Island General Baptist Church.

She united with the church at the age of 14 and has been a faithful member for 54 years.

Her quiet but dedicated life has been an inspiration to the church and to all who know her, according to the Rev. Ronnie Ledbetter, her pastor, who presented her a corsage of pink carnations.

Her husband is Riley Wilson, who presently serves as trustee and choir leader of the church.

Receiving recognition for perfect Sunday School attendance were Brenda Phillips and Reatha Phillips, one- year pins; Monetta Sutton, two- year pin; Marian Ledbetter, seven- year pin- Rhonda Ledbetter, eight- year pin; Phillip Ledbetter, nine- year pin; and Ronnie Ledbetter, 11- year pin.

New Bible version out

NEW YORK (AP) — In a prolific period of Bible production, translators have turned out another new one.

The latest addition is the "New International Version" of the New Testament, issued last fall after seven years' work by a global team of evangelical scholars.

Freshly rendered from the ancient Greek in which it was written, the new version puts the contents into common, contemporary English and a simple style.

"You cannot serve both God and Money," says Matthew 6:27, turning the old-style "Mammon" into the modern word for it — money.

The new version is one of many that have come out in the last few years, making these times the most productive period for new Bible translations in the long history of the book.

Dr. Herbert Grether, of the America Bible Society's translating committee, says desire for the Bible "in common words" has not been so high since the 16th century Protestant Reformation, a demand that includes Roman Catholics.

The output may seem somewhat "overwhelming, with so many new Bibles now available," he writes in the United Presbyterian and the United Church of Christ magazine, "A. D.," in analyzing the trend.

The "New International Version" involved work of 106 scholars of 20 denominations in Britain, Ireland, Canada, New Zealand, Australia and the United States.

The Rev. Youngbe Kindberg, the society's executive secretary, says the project is of the greatest magnitude — in numbers of scholars and countries involved — ever to undertake a Bible translation.

New film to play in 2 area churches

"Isn't It Good to Know," a new film that abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life experiences of real people, will be shown in two area churches Jan. 20. One showing is slated at 7 p.m. in Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane in Sikeston, and the other at 7:30 p.m. in First Baptist Church at Seventh and King Avenue in Portageville.

The latest film from World Wide Pictures, producers of "Time to Run".

"Isn't It Good to Know" was edited and directed by J. Michael Hooser, a 26- year-old film- maker who brings provocative new techniques to his first major film. Using a varying number of images on the same screen, Hooser creates a multi- media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from the Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas" through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

By shifting the viewer's attention from the true stories of the people who lived them to brief appearances by Billy Graham and video- vignettes coupled with original new songs-- "Isn't It Good To Know" and "Gone Away", by Tedd Smith, and "The Soap- box Song", by Judy McKenzie-- Hooser created a film conveying ultimate drama-- the drama of courage.

Purpose comes out of emptiness. Silence becomes communication. And from the disillusionment of drugs, violent protest and witchcraft, there comes a new beginning-- new life.

"Isn't It Good to Know" is currently being shown in numerous locations across the country each month.

Graham would like to become country pastor

MADISON, Ga. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, who has preached to millions of people around the world, says he would gladly change places with a country church pastor.

"I really want to be just a preacher. I don't want to be anything else in all of life except to preach the gospel and win people for Christ," he said.

"In fact, when I pass some of these little churches in Georgia . . . and these little towns and little Baptist churches, I sort of long to go back to that.

The POWER of FAITH

THE BIBLE

117. Samson Is Captured

On three separate occasions, Samson had prevented the treacherous Delilah from discovering the secret of his strength. "And it came to pass, when she pressed him daily with her words, and urged him, so that his soul was vexed unto death; that he told her all his heart, and said unto her, there hath not come a razor upon mine head; for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb: if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak, and be like any other man." (Judges 16:16-17)

When Delilah realized that Samson had indeed confessed the secret, she called for a barber who shaved his locks as Samson slept. Then, Delilah told him, as she had on the three other occasions, that the Philistines were upon him. Samson thought he would shake himself free again, for he did not know that the spirit of the Lord had left him.

So the Philistines were able to capture Samson. They took him to Gaza, bound him with bronze chains and forced him to grind grain in the prison.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mr. Blanton Jr.:

Misleading information seems to have gained wide currency in the state that the reorganization bill recently approved by the Missouri Senate carries out the spirit and intent of the "Little Hoover" Commission.

I would like to make it clear that the bill as passed by the Senate, does not carry out the intent or spirit of the Little Hoover Commission. I think you will realize, after reading the Little Hoover report I mailed to you in October, 1973, that only a part of the Commission report is carried out in the Senate bill. Unfortunately the Senate also exceeded the recommendations of the Commission with the excessive use of advice and consent which extends to second and third level appointments. When this excessive advice and consent is coupled with the recommendations of the Commission which the Senate did not accept, mainly that of giving authority to the department director to properly organize and manage his department - the Senate bill will not carry out the intent of the Commission but impair the basic authority for reorganization given to the department directors by the Little Hoover report.

The main thrust of the Commission was to:

"reduce to manageable proportions the unrealistically expended span of supervisory control now imposed upon the state's chief executive. The State Reorganization Commission sought to establish reasonable lines of responsiblity and control under department heads."

The Commission's report strongly emphasized the need to improve the manageability of the executive branch by strengthening the supervision of department heads, thus providing an intermediate level of supervision responsible to the Governor, making the executive branch more accountable to the citizens of the state.

The Commission sought reorganization "in terms of the general and statewide interest," rather than the convenience and desires of state agencies. The Senate bill in far too many cases places the more narrow interests of individual state agencies first.

Again, by accepting only a small part of the recommendations of the Commission, the bill approved by the Senate departs from that concept in even greater degree than the measure vetoed by Governor Bond last year.

Like the vetoed bill, the Senate bill has too many provisions which impair opportunities for consolidation of staffs of related programs; for joint use of equipment; for elimination of overlapping and duplication among programs; better utilization of building space; and improved fiscal planning. It does so by clothing sub- units in departments with too much autonomy, spelling out too many departmental details and obscuring lines of departmental discipline. The bill seems to be the result of a nearsighted view in which only a tree is visible and the forest is out of sight.

I earnestly hope that, in the legislative processes that lie ahead, a measure can be approved that conforms with what the voters were led to expect -- namely, a measure providing a simplified state structure with departments in which clear lines of authority and responsibility can be established.

I urge you to talk with the Representatives and Senators in your area in an attempt to convince them that the citizens of Missouri do want a good reorganization bill --- and will not accept less.

Sincerely yours,
D. W. Gilmore
Chairman of the Citizens Committee
Citizens Committee for State Reorganization

Dear Editor,

I am writing a letter to praise the City Humane officer. I think it is a very nice person to let people call him at home when he is off duty. I think the City should give him a raise in pay since he is doing such a very nice job we are such lucky people of Sikeston to have a very nice person to do this job he does. Would you please print this in the paper so he can and everybody else can read about him and his good work.

Yours truly,
David Sisk

Editor Blanton,

I do not want the E.R.A. or the so called Equal Rights Amendment passed. We do not need it the Civil Rights has already passed laws against the discrimination against women in jobs or hiring and wages all women need do is see that it is enforced. The E.R.A. would not help in any way. But according to some E. R. A. material I received it would force condition on women and men that would put us at the level of animals. I don't want women drafted to fight with men and quartered with men to use the same toilet and wash room I want women and men rest rooms separate as they have always been. Men should support their family and women should take care of their home and family. Women should consider the creation of life that God gave them a privilege and the shaping of that life into a decent human being a real fulfilment. I believe in God and his commandment and if we shaped our lives by these commandments it would be a better world. The New Testament tell men and women both how to treat each other and if we did this we would have the best society that ever existed.

We need God and moral values we don't need E. R. A. or Women Lib. Civil rights gave women job rights we don't need E. R. A.

Women should call their Representative and Gov. Bond and write their local paper if they don't want E.R.A. if you want the material on ERA contact Mrs. Harry Bock 561 Kingshighway, New Madrid or get it from Jefferson City. I have already distributed all the material I have.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I have just finished a most enjoyable and rewarding project. It took four and one-half years and fulfilled a dream of many years. I moved to Sikeston in July of 1969 to be a supervisor in the Scott County Welfare Office. In August of 1969 I noticed that Southeast Missouri State College (now a university) was offering a night course in Shakespeare for graduate students. Since I had never taken a course in Shakespeare, I saw this as an opportunity to learn. I enrolled in the course and enjoyed it so much that I kept going one night a week for four and one- half years. Last Sunday afternoon I was awarded the Master of Arts degree at Southeast Missouri State University. I received a B.S. in Education from the college in 1952. Going back 17 years later, I was impressed by the changed at the university. I learned much about the thoughts and problems of the younger generation. I am more hopeful about our future after rubbing elbows with these younger students.

I always felt accepted by the students. In many of the classes, I was old enough to be the father of the other students. The faculty and administration were most courteous in their treatment of me.

I'm sure many who read this would like to learn more about a particular field. Why not write the university and see what is offered in your field of interest. I'm going to rest a while and go back again, this time in American history.

Oh yes, to get the degree, I gave up T. V. I've watched less than 25 hours of T.V. in those 4½ years and don't feel I missed a thing. With the gas shortage, what better way to spend a Sunday afternoon reading Shakespeare's Richard II and Richard III and comparing them to Richard Nixon. You might be surprised what Shakespeare could be saying to America in 1973-74.

Sincerely,
Rev. Howard Ray

Dear Editor:

The Economic and Social Council of the United Nations met recently amid pompous impressiveness and came forth with a variety of great pronouncements expressing "grave concern" about nearly everything. The Council for Human Rights proceeded to adopt 15 profound resolutions, including prohibition of capital punishment.

It was a surprise to no one that not one of the 15 "great" resolutions mentioned a word of condemnation of Russia or the "People's Republic" of China for denying all Human Rights and Civil Rights to their people who are held captive and not even permitted to emigrate freely. Mention of the captive Baltic and other nations was conspicuous by its absence, although they are dominated and held captive by Communist dictatorships.

The United Nation's vaunted "Declaration of Human Rights" is sadly enough a hollow untruth!

C. C. Moseley, President

Dear Sir:

It is my understanding that the Constitution of the United States provides specific powers for the federal government and reserves all other powers to the states or to the people.

Where and when did the Constitution give the federal government any authority to decree the speed at which trucks may be driven (or any other vehicle) on the roads of any state or in the streets of any town or city?

Has Mr. Nixon allowed some parts of the Constitution to be erased, along with some of his tapes?

Fund-raising is topic of Chaffee Jaycee meeting

CHAFFEE — Various fund-raising projects were discussed at a recent meeting of the Chaffee Jaycees.

The group appointed Bill Hagan to investigate the possibility of bringing an all-star wrestling event to the city, and Dan Bollinger was named to head the "Sixties Dance" committee.

Mark Pfefferkorn reported the club lost $300 on its Christmas tree sales this year, and it was reported a Jaycee - sponsored shooting match set for Jan. 27 has been postponed until Feb. 3.

Members voted to plant an evergreen tree in Circle Park to serve as a permanent community Christmas tree, and it was announced that members will visit the Cape Girardeau Jaycees Monday night.

Separate SS checks sought

What's the law?

Q. My wife and I are drawing social security benefits on my account number. The check comes with both our names on it. Can we get separate checks?

A. Yes. Both you and your wife should sign a statement saying that you want separate checks in the future. These statements should be made at your social security office.

Q. I am entitled to Medicare but I have never received any monthly checks because I am still working. I will be 72 in a month, what do I have to do to start my checks?

A. There is nothing you have to do to start your checks. The program center should begin your payment automatically.

Q. When I filed for social security for myself and my son I was told he could receive monthly benefits until he was 18. He will be getting married in 2 months and is only 17, will he still receive social security benefits?

A. No. Benefits to a child are terminated if he or she should get married regardless of what age.

Q. I just found out I will be unable to go back to work. I know it will be 5 months before I can draw a Social Security disability check. Would I also have to wait to draw a disability payment under the Supplemental Security Income program?

A. No, there is no waiting period. However the same disability criteria must be met as with Social Security disability payments. If you meet those requirements and the income and resources limitation you can receive benefits.

Q. I am only 60 and receive state welfare payments because I am disabled and can't work. Can I apply for Supplemental Security Income payments?

A. You need not make application. You will continue to receive payments but they will come from the Federal General Fund.

Q. I am receiving a disability check each month from the State. Can I also get a disability check under the new Supplemental Security Income program?

A. The new Federal program replaces the state program of payments to the aged, blind and disabled, therefore your payments will continue but your check will come from the Federal general revenues rather than the state.

Q. Is there an age requirement for disability benefits under Supplemental Security Income, i.e., do I have to be 50 or 60 years old?

A. No. Supplemental Security Income is based on the severity of disability and the individual need for financial assistance.

Q. Is there a waiting period necessary before payment can be received?

A. No payment can be made under the Supplemental Security Income before January 1974 but that is only because that is the date the law became effective. There is no waiting period from the time of disability to the date of eligibility for payment.

The case of the collared girl watcher

By Jack Strauu, LL.B.

Chester was an extremely broad- minded individual. Every night, he'd go to his favorite corner in town and, standing quietly off the the side, admire, sighfully, every attractive girl that passed by. One night, however, his enchantment was abruptly interruped by two police officers who arrested him on charges of violating an ordinance that provided, in effect: "No person shall loiter on street corners."

"It was the same thing every night," the arresting officers told the judge. "Chester would turn up on that corner and look the girls up and down like a mouse eyeing a piece of cheese."

"So what?" retorted Chester. "There's no harm in that. Girl watching is an all- American pastime and any law that prohibits it can't be legal. I wasn't loitering, I was concentrating."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail girl- watching Chester for violating the anti- loitering ordinance?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that "loitering" as such is not a crime. It can become a crime, noted the judge, only if it is done for a reason prohibited by law. And, he concluded, Chester's reason for standing on the corner was not so prohibited.

Mideast trip may yield formal peace proposal

MADRID (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for the Middle East today with high hopes that he can "grease the way" for an agreement between Egypt and Israel to pull back their armies intermingled around the Suez Canal.

A senior official said Kissinger may emerge with a formal proposal to put before the Geneva peace conference, but even if he does not he expects to bring the two sides close enough together to negotiate a disengagement.

Kissinger stopped off in Spain to meet Pedro Cortina, the new foreign minister in a government that was substantially revised following the assassination Dec. 20 of Premier Luis Carrero Blanco. Kissinger will fly to Aswan, Egypt, in midafternoon and may meet immediately with President Anwar Sadat upon arrival.

The Egyptians already have made several concrete proposals and Kissinger received "a pretty good idea" of Israel's position from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan last weekend in Washington. Now, the U.S. official said, he is ready to shuttle between Egypt and Israel over the next few days in order to overcome their mutual distrust and smooth out the "technical issues" that stand in the way of disengagement.

If his middleman role is productive, Kissinger intends to shuttle back and forth twice between Sadat in Aswan, where he is recovering from bronchitis, and the Israeli Cabinet in Jerusalem. He also probably will expand his travels to Jordan for a session with King Hussein, to Damascus to see President Hafez Assad and to Brussels on the way home to brief European ministers.

Initially, Kissinger had planned only three days on the road but his trip evidently will expand to at least one week.

"What we expect to do on this trip, is to see whether we can transform the general ideas that have up to now been advanced into a concrete proposal," Kissinger said in a Thursday news conference.

He again denied that he expects to return to Washington with an agreement. But he was optimistic that the likely outcome "would be a negotiation which would be conducted" at the Geneva peace conference site.

Kissinger flew all night, leaving shortly before 1 a.m. EST. He scheduled a two-hour stop in Madrid to discuss a military base arrangement with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina.

The next scheduled destination was the southern Egyptian city of Aswan where President Anwar Sadat is recuperating from bronchitis.

Patrol satellite station to work 16-hour day

The Troop E satellite station of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, which opened in October at 111 Edward St., will advance to a 16- hour day next week.

Lt. W. E. Lemonds, who supervises the station for the three zones it covers — Cape Girardeau, Sikeston and Portageville — said demand for services is increasing.

Most of this is for public service information, he said, including weather data, weights for vehicles, driver's license examinations and motor vehicle inspections.

Many motorists, now aware of the Sikeston services of the patrol, are making calls here rather than to Troop E headquarters at Poplar Bluff.

The station is now manned by three state weight inspectors, who serve as dispatchers and radio operators. Assigned are Burl J. Givens, Robert D. Landers and Larry Steward.

The station is located near the east city limits one block north of Malone Avenue in facilities of the State Highway Department's maintenance department.

Lt. Lemonds said radio contact is maintained with all but the northern part of the Cape Girardeau zone. The antenna at this time is not of sufficient height to reach into north Cape Girardeau County and into Perry County, he said.

Troopers in the three zones on the eastern edge of Troop E maintain their radio contacts through the headquarters, rather than through Sikeston, Lt. Lemonds said.

He noted that the station also serves as a stock center for supplies for the three zones, providing more immediate access for patrol officers than the Poplar Bluff headquarters.

Lt. Lemonds, who now lives in Poplar Bluff, will soon move to Sikeston to be in immediate contact with his new assignment.

Phelps receives gavel from Sikeston family

He received a new one after Christmas from R. I. Morton of Columbia. Phelps had a noticeably lighter touch on the Senate rostrum this week.

But Wednesday, the gavel Morton sent also turned up missing.

schools and St. Denis Catholic School at Benton.

Electric power in Morley was interrupted several times during the night as Missouri Utilities crews worked to repair downed lines in the area.

Power was off in Bloomfield for approximately two hours early today, but no other power failures were reported in Stoddard County. Heavily traveled roads and highways are clear, but country roads and city side streets are still icy. Tree limbs were reported down all over the county. The only schools closed were at Bloomfield and Bell City.

Schools were open in Mississippi County and roads were clear with only patches of ice, according to a spokesman for radio station KYMO in East Prairie. No power outages were reported.

No electrical power failure from falling wires was reported in New Madrid today. However, Municipal Light and Power Co. crews were trimming ice- laden tree limbs as a preventive measure.

New Madrid County R- 1 schools were in session today after being dismissed early Wednesday.

jobs to support their families.

He said a pay hike for his staff is a number one priority.

The committee did not dispute him. He asked for a $12.6 million budget, about 15 per cent over his current appropriation.

Camp's goals for this year include in-service staff training, more staff decision making, an inmates' literacy program to combat the 18 per cent illiteracy rate in prisons, and a raise in inmate wages from a 4 cents per hour maximum to a $50 per month maximum.

"A man in confinement can find more reward from helping another inmate than in any other way," Camp said, about the literacy program where inmates would teach each other. He said he worked in similar programs which have succeeded.

Prison industries should offer jobs more like the "real workaday world," he said.

Committee Chairman Norman Merrell, D-Monticello, said, "Some of your objectives are tremendous," but worried about the costs of bringing prison job training up to date.

Camp said his budget will save the state money by preventing crime and recidivism.
